

Report Charges Early Jail Release

Richard R. Post, the convicted kidnaper-slaver of Ruth Wilhelmsen in Daly City last June, was prematurely released from prison in 1972 for a rape offense, a probation officer declared Nov. 26.

Post, 28, gave a 35-minute presentation proclaiming his innocence Wednesday, but failed to sway Superior Court Judge Lyle R. Edson, who sentenced him to prison for five years to life for second-degree murder and kidnapping.

The judge also denied a motion for a new trial.

During arguments on that motion, Post outlined his interpretation of the trial evidence, and said that it was insufficient to convict him.

He concluded, "You honor, I'm innocent, and the evidence is clearly consistent with that."

Post challenged the credibility of 14-year-old Marty Severeid of Daly City, the only witness who positively identified Post.

"It's his credibility against mine," Post told the judge.

Post's attorney, William Greenspan, argued against those same lines.

Conversely, prosecutor Jeff Boyarsky argued that the young boy was a credible witness, and that portions of his testimony concerning the description of Post's car was supported by other witnesses, although none of them could identify Post. Judge Edson agreed.

Trial testimony established that Post abducted Miss Wilhelmsen from the Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City last June 29 at 4:30 p.m. She was a clerk at Macy's.

The body of the 21-year-old San Francisco woman was found off Skyline Boulevard near Hillsborough July 5. Post was arrested the next day, as witnesses gave police the description of a car which matched that of Post's.

Probation officer Jonathan P. Jones told Judge Edson that hospital officials in 1970 diagnosed Post as a mentally disordered sexual offender, but ruled that treatment would not be beneficial. The doctors called him a threat to society, Jones said.

Post was sentenced to state prison in December of 1969 for a rape offense earlier that year of a woman in Pasadena.

"The offense for which he was ultimately imprisoned is significant in that Post's modus operandi in that case was nearly identical with that in the instant matter," Jones told Judge Edson.

The probation officer said that Post in 1969 was "implicated in several offenses" in the Los Angeles area, originally charged with three assaults to rape, two kidnapings, and one rape. He was convicted of the rape charge.

Jones said that Post received psychiatric treatment at Vacaville Medical Center from January 20, 1970, until his release in April of 1972.

"An original order that maintained psychiatric outpatient care was removed in June of 1972," Jones said. "And, in spite of the fact that Post had come to the attention of Fairfield police in a rape investigation, he was discharged from parole on May 17, 1974, after a favorable recommendation from his parole agent."

"In retrospect," Jones told Judge Edson, "It is now obvious that Post's release from custody and parole were premature and the optimism of the Department of Corrections and the Adult Authority was ill-founded."

In order to prevent such an occurrence as in the instant case, it is felt that Post should be sentenced to prison. So that he will not be able to once again secure his release in a short period of time to use of his quick wits and guile. This man is a menace to society," Jones concluded.

Post, a native of Greenfield, Ohio, was found by prison tests to have "a very superior intelligence range," according to Jones.

The convicted killer, a computer programmer for a San Francisco firm at the time of his arrest, has a six-year-old daughter. He is divorced. He served three years in the Navy before being declared "unfit," Jones added.

The probation officer also said that a psychiatric examination of Post in January of 1970 diagnosed him as one with "anxiety neurosis, characterized by psychosexual problems, depression and obsessive-compulsive features."

Boyfriend Charged in DC Slaying, Beating

The boyfriend of the young mother found beaten and stabbed inside a Daly City apartment Saturday has been arrested and charged with murder and attempted murder.

Police allege Charles C. Lawrence brutally beat and repeatedly stabbed Alma Elaine Ayala, 19, at the couple's apartment at 220 Lake Merced Ave., sometime Friday night or Saturday morning.

Lawrence, a security guard at the Hunter's Point Housing Project in San Francisco, also is charged with the slaying of seven-month-old Carlos Espinosa, son of Miss Ayala, whose body was found under a pile of dirty clothing in one of the apartment's two bedrooms.

Lawrence and Miss Ayala had moved into the apartment only two weeks ago.

Neighbors refused comment on the couple's activities or behavior. Their most frequently used comment regarding Miss Ayala and Lawrence, was that nothing was heard on the night of the slaying.

It was learned police likewise could find no witnesses to the alleged attack, or anyone having heard unusual noises during the incident.

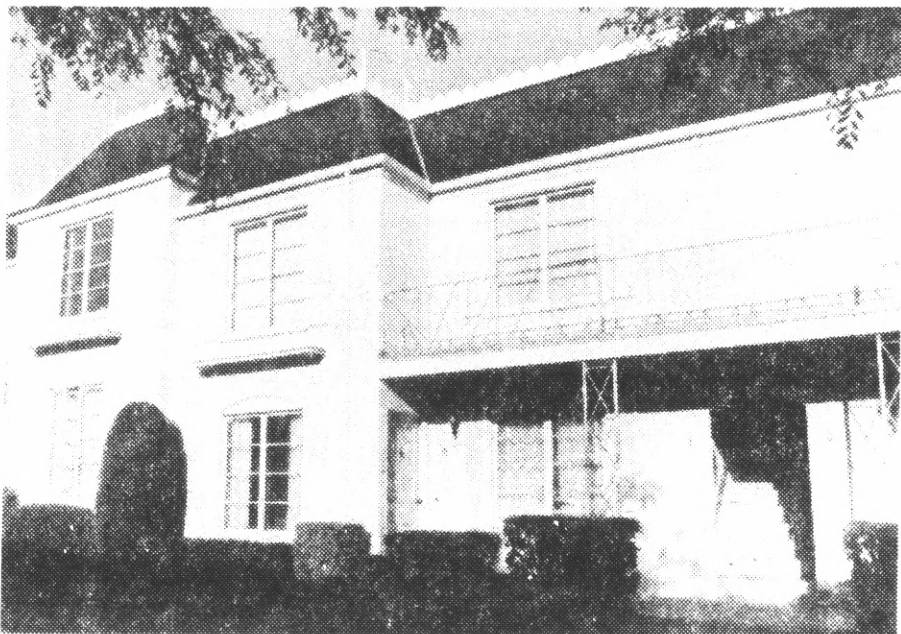

The Manager of the apartment house complex, Pauline Hewlett, said tenants are given a credit check when they apply for an apartment in the 3,000-plus unit Country Club Apartment complex.

The apartment was rented to a "Charles and Evelyn Lawrence" on Nov. 11.

According to records of the apartment manager, the couple had a son, "Carlos Lawrence."

Credit checks on the "Lawrences" disclosed no irregularities and the employment of Lawrence indicates his monthly salary qualified him for the $200 per month apartment.

DEATH SITE

It was in the upstairs apartment of this building at 220 Lake Merced Ave., that Alma Elaine Ayala, 19, was beaten and her seven-month-old son killed sometime Friday night or Saturday morning.

Town Hall Meeting Set

A "town hall" meeting, designed to air questions on annexation and other concerns of the unincorporated Colma communities near Daly City, will be held today at 8 p.m.

The meeting will be held in the Garden Village School multi-use room.

Co-chairwomen of the meeting are Mrs. Margaret Fleischer, Beachwood Drive, and Mrs. Sue Johnson, of Gilman Drive. They said commissioners from the Broadmoor Police Protection and Colma Fire Protection districts are assisting with plans.

The women said they hope officials from the county and state, as well as those from neighboring Daly City and Colma Township can provide facts concerning several subjects, including annexation, government service costs, police and fire protection, taxes, curb and gutter requirements, roads and rezoning.

The co-chairwomen explained that rumors regarding those subjects have been widespread and the meeting is an attempt to learn the facts for the benefit of residents in the unincorporated area.

County Supervisor Edward Baccio, as well as David Rowe, the city manager of Daly City, have indicated they will attend, in addition to Colma City Councilman Raymond Ottoni Sr., County Sheriff John McDonald, a representative of State Sen. George Moscone, and businessmen from the area.

Attorney Wayne MacFadden of Foster City will conduct the major portion of the program, the women said.

Beaten Girl Clings To Life

Despite overwhelming odds against her survival, Alma Elaine Ayala clung to life today following extensive surgery at Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City.

Miss Ayala was found battered and stabbed in her Daly City apartment Saturday.

She was reported barely alive following what one police officer described as "one of the worst beatings I've ever seen."

In a nearby bedroom was the body of her seven-month-old son, also beaten and stabbed.

The child had been dead for several hours before

Request For Bus Planned

A Daly City parent, supported by the signatures of about 70 other parents, will seek a bus for some of Ben Franklin Junior High School's students when the Board of Trustees meet tonight.

Those parents claim their children are faced with unsafe conditions in order to attend school at the junior high.

Many of the residents, all from the M. Pauline Brown School feeder area, will attend the meeting, according to Mrs. Stella Lemesh.

Her husband, Martin, has requested board action.

Mrs. Lemesh said the junior high children presently are cutting through Brown School to Annie Street, walking along Washington Street, crossing 87th Street and walking up Maddux Drive to the school, on Stewart Street.

"The children shouldn't have to go through another school to get where they want," Mrs. Lemesh said. "It's in the children's safety interest that we need buses."

In their petitions, the parents ask that the Jefferson Elementary School District provide a bus from Brown School.

"We fear for the children's safety," the petitions cited.

They are asking that a bus be provided "before winter darkness shrouds our children from view completely."

It appears, however, that

Hats Being Thrown Into Council Race

Candidates for the Daly City municipal elections to be held in March are beginning to throw their hats into the proverbial political ring.

Two have formally announced their intentions to run for the city council, and a third, incumbent Anthony Giammona, has let it be known he is going to file in December.

G. R. "Ron" Darling and Richard L. Silver have entered the municipal elections.

There are two council seats up for grabs in the elections, in addition to both the city treasurer and city clerk posts. It is expected City Clerk Anna Ohlendorf and City Treasurer Anthony Zidich will seek re-election.

Darling, a 36-year-old account executive for Lithgow and Rayhill Insurance Brokers of San Francisco, is past-president of the Daly City Toastmasters Club, current chairman of the board of managers of the Stonestown YMCA (which serves Daly City), charter member of the Daly City-Colma Junior Chamber of Commerce, and a member of several other service organizations.

Silver recently resigned as a trustee of the city's Library Board, a post he had held for some six years.

The 27-year-old Silver is unmarried and has been a resident of Daly City for the past 22 years.

He is district representative to Assemblyman Louis J. Papan and has been active in civic matters for many years.

Silver is a former member and president of the Library Board, deputy registrar of voters for San Mateo County, member of the Democratic State Central Committee, San Mateo County Central Committee, Daly City Democratic Club, North San Mateo County Democratic Association, Daly City General Plan Committee, active in the San Mateo County Probation Department, and a member of the board of directors, San Mateo County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

In addition, Silver is active in numerous business and community activities, including the chamber of commerce, Friends of the Library, County Historical Association, Retail Clerks Union (Local 775 AFL-CIO), California Library Association, and Peninsula Press Club.

Darling said he is "running for this office as an independent, not as a member of any existing local political group. My knowledge of issues comes from my close observations of the local scene. I strongly hold it is a duty for every concerned citizen to be involved in the community, and to speak out on issues."

Darling said he would work for lower taxes "through tight budget controls," better city transit and annexation of Broadmoor.

Silver said he plans to raise issues in coming months on improvement of the city's transportation system. "The people have been waiting far too long for this system to be improved, and far too little has been done."

Finance Director Hired for DC

Daly City has hired a new finance director to replace John Massen, who left the post several months ago.

He is C. Robert Green, currently serving as Secretary-Treasurer of the Marvland Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Green will assume his duties with the city effective Jan. 1, according to City Manager David Rowe.

Rowe said the fact that the city's finance department has been operating at peak efficiency since Massen's departure "is testimony to the dedication of this department's staff."

Green is married and the father of six grown children.

The $26,500 post pays several thousand dollars less than the job now held by Green.

However, the new finance director was anxious "to get back into the

Variety of Buses to Pose a Headache to the Transit District

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Maintenance of those city-purchased buses now in use throughout the county will undoubtedly prove to be a monumental headache when the San Mateo County Transit District begins full operations, General Manager John T. Mauro said this week.

There are 69 buses assigned to 11 cities in the county at the present time. Total carrying capacity of all buses is only 1,660 people.

Aside from the limited ridership capabilities, the vehicles are manufactured by eight different firms — one of which is out of business and another manufactures only a limited number of buses.

Further, the buses use three different types of fuel: propane, gasoline or diesel.

Because of this diversity, costs of maintenance, fuel supplies and even obtaining qualified personnel to repair the vehicles, is expected to be something more than a minor problem, according to Mauro.

The Transit District Board of Directors has, meanwhile, placed a moratorium on cities purchasing any more buses.

Some four months ago, the district took over ownership of the buses.

"Our district has inherited a fleet (of buses) which has a limited capacity to carry what we hope will be an expanding load of passengers," Mauro said.

But there already is some overcrowding on certain routes with the result that requests have been made by cities for additional equipment and manpower.

If the practice of buying small mini-type buses — the type most cities had been purchasing — were to continue, it would limit fare box revenues and add to operating costs and anticipated deficits, Mauro says.

For this reason, the district is now buying 19 used municipal buses.

These would be used on routes throughout the county while awaiting delivery of 28 new buses — expected to take between 12-18 months.

"If we were to persist in buying small buses, and our goal is to carry 20,000 passengers during rush hours, we would need more than 800 buses and over 1,000 drivers," Mauro estimates.

Another example of the adverse effects of small buses operating on a countywide scale is in the fare box revenues.

If all 69 buses were filled, and if the fare were 25 cents a person, operating expenses for just the drivers would far outdistance the $285 received during the time period, it was explained.

A greater inventory of parts, some perhaps impossible to obtain because of the closing of manufacturers, will have to be carried.

These parts, like the fuels, will be ordered in smaller quantities, thus adding to the cost.

A VARIETY

These are some of the various buses that the County Transit District must maintain when it takes over full operation of the county system.

This difficulty in getting parts will sideline some buses — perhaps permanently, Mauro said.

"Maintenance facilities and personnel will have to cope with different engines requiring different skills, different tools, hoists and such. There must also be precautions taken for storage of different fuels, in addition to the cost of buying smaller quantities of fuels."

"By buying (these items) in smaller quantities, we have lost the opportunities of standardization. This practice (of buying different buses) should not be continued since we are, after all, dealing with public funds," Mauro said.

Of course those buses already bought "cannot simply be thrown away," Mauro says.

They represent a total $2.3 million investment. They will be used on routes where roads and passenger capacity dictates their needs, it was explained.

Costs of the existing buses ranged from $12,000 to $52,000. Manufacturers are Mercedes Benz, Dodge, Minibus, Inc., Fleetwood (out of business), Gilling, Twin Coach (manufacturing only to fill existing orders), and GMC.

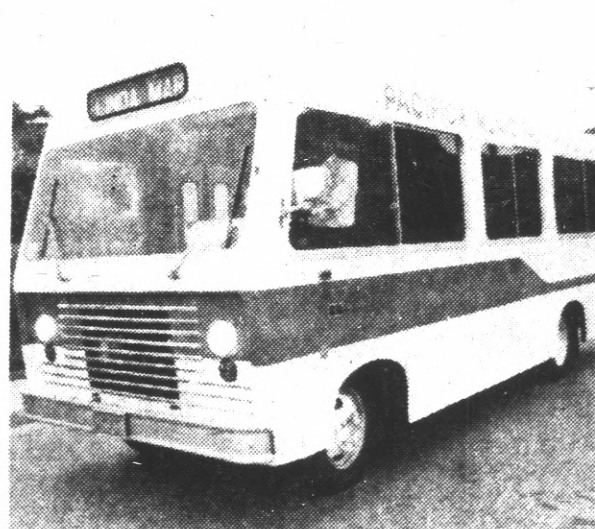

Pacific's eight Minibus, Inc. built buses are the only ones in the county capable of facilitating the handicapped.

A TRUE THANKSGIVING
Orlin Long of South San Francisco, with his wife, thanks John Scafiro and Pat O'Brien of the fire department's paramedic team for giving him life for Thanksgiving.

He Owes His Life to Paramedics

By RICK SULLIVAN

In his 63 years of life Orlin Long has never been more thankful than he is this week. Thanksgiving Day marked the end of his second week at his second chance at life, a gift from two South San Francisco paramedics, who teamed in a successful effort to pull the man free from the grips of death.

Long is recovering today, both mentally and physically, in a private room at Kaiser Permanente Hospital from his closest scrape with death.

Two weeks ago he suffered his fourth and most severe heart attack in the living room of his C Street home. The action by the two paramedics, John Scafiro and Pat O'Brien, saved Long's life, the first "save" the South San Francisco paramedic unit has been credited with since its creation some eight months ago.

"There's no question it was a definite save of his life," said Dr. Donald Eikenberry, Long's Kaiser physician.

"It was a complete save that's resulting in complete recovery."

It was on a Saturday evening that Long sat down in his living room recliner, trying to ease the discomfort he felt in his chest.

His wife, Marie, insisted that she be allowed to call the doctor, but Long told her not to bother. He said the pains were something he experienced often and they would subside.

Long took a nitroglycerine tablet and the pain eased. But within minutes the pain returned. Long flinched, grabbed at his chest and lost consciousness. He had sustained a "full" cardiac arrest.

From beside her husband's hospital bed, Mrs. Long told how she immediately called the paramedic unit, then rushed to her husband to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

"When I heard the paramedic unit drive up to my house, I ran to the front porch and screamed. 'Hurry, hurry, he's dying!'"

Scafiro and O'Brien, with the help of other firemen that had arrived at the scene, moved Long from the recliner onto the floor. They said Long at that time had no pulse, barely was breathing and his eyes were fixed and dilated.

While the firemen applied a resuscitator to Long, Scafiro and O'Brien "counter-shocked" Long in the chest area in an effort to get his heart beating.

They were unsuccessful. The paramedics counter-shocked again. Long still didn't respond.

Scafiro called the paramedics' base hospital, Kaiser, and was instructed by the emergency room physician, Dr. Philip Morgan, to inject 50 milligrams of lido-caine and counter-shock again.

The paramedics did as advised, but still Long failed to respond.

Dr. Morgan then told Scafiro and O'Brien to inject 50 cc of sodium bicarbonate and 100 milligrams of lidocaine, plus counter-shock again.

The paramedics did that and Long showed a strong pulse, "good" blood pressure and began breathing normally again.

He was transported to Kaiser.

It took the paramedics three minutes to revive the dying Long, whom Dr. Eikenberry said would have died or been a "mental vegetable" if the paramedics had not acted as quickly as they did.

Long, who retired from the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. in 1962, had suffered three other heart attacks, plus a stroke prior to his recent attack. His other attacks, however, were not full cardiac arrests, and Long was transported to a hospital by his wife or by ambulance.

An ambulance would have been of little value to Long in his latest attack. According to Dr. Eikenberry, if an ambulance would have been called instead of the paramedics, Long most likely would be dead.

Mrs. Long said she and her husband have waited as long as 20 minutes for an ambulance to arrive at their home. She said she had known of the paramedic unit in South San Francisco, because she had seen them "in action" on her street.

"I know they (the paramedics) are great and I trust them. If they weren't available I know my husband would be dead. I love them," she said.

Long, turning slowly in his bed to face Scafiro and O'Brien, said in a low voice, "You men have brought me back to life. If you guys hadn't been there when you were, that would have been it for me."

"What way is there to show my gratitude? I just don't know how," he said.

"It's gratitude enough just to see you lying there and alive," O'Brien replied.

"It's a wonderful Thanksgiving, we have a lot to be thankful for," said Mrs. Long.

Homeowners Group Will Meet Dec. 6

The last general meeting of 1975 of the West Park Homeowner's Improvement Association will be held Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of West Orange Library.

The program will consist of a civil defense presentation by Don Allen, who is responsible for civil defense planning for South San Francisco.

This program will focus on services that will be available in case of emergency such as an earthquake and Allen will be available to answer questions on this subject.

They will be conducting nominations and election of officers of the association 1976.

Completes Course

Private Martin G. Shotwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Shotwell, 622 Southgate Ave., Daly City, completed the radio relay and carrier attendant course at the Army Signal School at Ft. Gordon, Ga.

During the 23-week course, he learned to operate and maintain field radio relay, carrier and associated equipment.

Pvt. Shotwell entered the Army in June of this year and completed basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

The private is a 1974 graduate of Westmoor High School.

Bar Examination Results Listed

More than 100 San Mateo County residents are among the 3,550 people who passed the Fall, 1975, general bar examination, the California State Bar's Committee of Bar Examiners announced today in San Francisco.

Approximately 92 per cent of those who passed the examination have already fulfilled other requirements to practice law, including a professional responsibility examination.

Candidates will be certified as attorneys at admission ceremonies on December 15, 16, 18 and 19 in Sacramento, San Diego, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Fresno and San Bernardino.

San Mateo County residents who have passed the bar examination are: Michael G. Ackerman of 1675 Van Buren, San Mateo; Peter H. Adams of 340 Glendale Road, Hillsborough; William F. Adams of Apt. 4, 841 Catmaran St., Foster City; Barbara Lynne Amstman of 20 Willow Road, Apt. 40, Menlo Park; Lloyd W. Aubry Jr. of 20 Arcadia Place, Hillsborough; a bus may not be so easily obtained.

Bus

Ray Ogden, director of JESD transportation, said the requirements for bus privileges are "pretty cut and dried."

Any student within a two-mile radius of the school walks, Ogden said.

Students who live beyond the two-mile limit are provided a bus.

The only two exceptions, to Ogden's knowledge, are for children who otherwise would have to cross John Daly Boulevard or Highway 280.

The district buses 4,400 children to eight different schools with eight buses in 1½ hours, he said. The district at this time, Ogden said, is short on buses.

He said there are more than 60 children who would be eligible for a bus if M. Pauline Brown feeder area were provided with transportation.

As a result, two buses probably would be needed. One bus would transport 66 children, he said.

It costs the district $69 for each bus at a four hour minimum.

The bus schedule already is "thinly spread and tight," Ogden said.

Ogden said it's not just a question of that particular area.

"Maybe they do need it, but if we open it up, there are a lot of areas right on that two-mile limit," Ogden said. "If we open it up for one, we have to open it up for the others."

He said, for example, that children who attend the Colma schools must walk across busy Hillside Boulevard.

"There would be a lot of areas where we would have to give them one," Ogden said.

Superintendent Herbert Hemington did say that the safety of children is an important factor and an exception can be made for that reason.

"Finances also certainly are a factor," Hemington said.

Mrs. Lemesh said children involved come from San Fernando, Santa Paula, Alto Loma, Mirada, Camelia and Eastmoor streets and St. James, St. Marks and St. Michaels courts and St. Francis Boulevard and Zita Manor.

Buses for Ben Franklin Junior High School now are provided only for those children who live on the west side of Skyline Boulevard.

She said that parents measured the distance to the school and found they were about one tenth of a mile short of the two mile radius area.

The trustees will meet at 8 p.m. in the district board room.

Bacciocco Meets Here

San Mateo County Supervisor Edward Bacciocco will conduct a constituents day Friday starting at 2 p.m. in the Southgate Avenue branch of the Daly City Library.

The supervisor will discuss problems related to the county and city at the library and then walk through the nearby Westlake Shopping Center.

Kidnaping Slaying At Bank

Packing boxes used for moving were scattered around the apartment, but the rooms apparently had not been ransacked, police said.

Prior to moving into the apartment, Miss Ayala had lived with her parents at 909 Castro Street, San Francisco.

The child's name was found on a birth certificate inside the apartment, it was learned.

According to police, Lawrence returned home from work and found Miss Avala lying nude on the floor of the master bedroom. She had been beaten, savagely and kicked and stabbed with a "puncture-type instrument," police said.

In another bedroom was the body of Carlos. He also had been beaten and stabbed numerous times.

No weapons were found, police said, however, it was believed that either an ice pick or thin screwdriver was used in the attack.

Miss Ayala is a part-time clerk at City College of San Francisco. She remains in "very critical" condition at Mary's Help Hospital, a spokesman said.

Records in the payroll section of the college indicate Miss Ayala is employed as a college aide under the name Evelyn Alma Ayala.

The victim was hired less than two months ago, on Oct. 1, 1975, by the college, a spokesperson said.

Police said there were no signs of forced entry into the apartment. A check of neighbors by police disclosed that no unusual noises were heard during the night.

Detectives Ken Cole and Dennis Prator, and Officer Kalani Desha have been assigned to the case.

This was the sixth homicide of the year in Daly City, according to police.

finance side of government," Rowe said.

Green is a graduate of Manchester (Indiana) College with a bachelor's degree in business administration (1940).

He holds a certified public accountant license in California and Ohio.

Green's prior municipal experience includes 3½ years as finance director for the City of Burbank, from 1968 through 1971. He also was finance director assistant city manager of Laguna Beach in 1972.

He has been supervisor of management services for Ernst & Ernst, Certified Public Accountants, from 1958 through 1963 and served as international controller for Tidewater Oil Co. in Los Angeles from 1963 through 1966.

In 1967, Green was finance director and assistant managing director of the Shahpur Chemical Co. in Tehran, Iran.

Green also is active in professional accounting organizations, including his present position as chairman of the 45-member National Council on Governmental Accounting.

He also holds membership in the 33-member National Intergovernmental Audit Forum.

police arrived, according to the San Mateo County Coroner's Office.

The dedication of the staff at Mary's Help Hospital and a "miracle machine" is keeping Miss Ayala alive, observers at the hospital noted.

Police officers are at her bedside 24 hours a day in the hope she will regain consciousness long enough to tell them what happened, and why.

But as each hour passes, hope for her recovery grows dim, it was learned.

Several operations have already been performed on the 19-year-old part-time college employee.

Income tax preparation at Citizens Savings.

Join the thousands of qualified Citizens savers who saved big dollars by having their tax returns prepared without charge.

True! Over 13,120 savers have had last year's Federal and State income tax returns prepared FREE...at Citizens Savings. You can do it, too. If you're currently paying a tax service, you can ELIMINATE the cost and get the same valuable service. And if you're NOT using a tax service, you can now get the experienced preparation guidance that will make sure you benefit from all possible deductions—and possibly save you important tax dollars.

Act now. Limited number of openings at each Citizens office.

Reservations are being taken for the preparation of 1975 returns. Don't be disappointed; hurry. To qualify, you can open a new Citizens account for $5,000 or more. Or, if you were a Citizens depositor prior to December 1, and have not previously used the service, you qualify with a $5,000 minimum balance. If you used the service previously, you qualify by adding $2,500 in new deposits since April 15, 1975, to your $5,000 minimum account. If you've used the service in the past, but are unable to add $2,500, a nominal $15 fee will be charged.

No matter how you look at it, this free tax service can save you important time and money—so make sure you qualify. Call your nearest Citizens office now.

A THANKSGIVING MEAL

It looked like the pilgrims had arrived at Junipero Serra School in Daly City Nov. 26. The festive occasion was a special Thanksgiving lunch complete with turkey and dressing.

Library's Holiday Activity

The Pacifica and Sanchez Libraries will celebrate the holidays the month of December with several activities and films.

The Sanchez Library, located in the Linda Mar Shopping Center, will offer a pre-school Holiday Story-hour at 10:30 a.m. today. This will contain stories covering Hanukkah and Christmas. On Dec. 22 at 2 p.m., all school-age children are invited to a holiday craft and baking program.

Children will bake cookies as well as create Christmas decorations.

The Pacifica Library on Palmetto and Hilton Way will hold a Holiday Puppet Show featuring "Arthur and His Christmas Cookies," "The Gingerbreadman," and other stories from children's books on Dec. 15 at 4 p.m.

At 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 19 in the children's room a holiday film program will be offered. "Christmas Cracker," "Great Toy Robbery" and other children's films will be shown.

Circus Show Set For Organizations

Approximately 5,000 happy circus fans from Cerebral Palsy Center, Mental Health Association, Recreational Center for the Handicapped and Multiple Sclerosis Society will enjoy a day at America's largest under-canvas circus.

The special performance of Circus Vargas is planned for Dec. 5 at noon.

"In every city we play, we are always delighted to set aside time for a special, free performance for particularly worthy organizations," says Clifford E. Vargas, president of the show. "These shows bring us among the best, most appreciative audiences we ever welcome."

Regular, open-to-the-public performances of America's big new circus are scheduled in the Bay Area from Dec. 4-10.

Hundreds of gifted performers and animals from across the world are featured in the 1975 Circus Vargas production.

Margie Cooper
Is Welcomed
By Chapter

President Nita Buchanan, Preceptor Delta Zeta, Beta Sigma Phi, recently welcomed Mrs. Margie Cooper, formerly a member of Preceptor Zeta Psi, to the chapter.

The order of the Thorns Degree was held at the home of Chris and Shirlee Gibbs.

Accepted into membership were Chris Gibbs and Mario Torrigino.

Honorary Thorn Jim Buchanan, assisted by fellow Thorns Will Sharp and Bob Dickow, conducted the candlelight ceremony.

A pirates party and treasure hunt followed the ceremony.

Nita Buchanan, Virginia Sharp, Rosanna Hollander and Betty Varner plan to attend the Northern California Council brunch Dec. 7 in the Civic Auditorium in Stockton.

The theme will be "Christmas Is for Friends" and honored guest will be Walter Ross III, descendant of the founder of Beta Sigma Phi.

The chapter's annual Christmas dinner and revelation of secret sisters will be held Dec. 9 at the Leaning Tower in South San Francisco.

CTA Workshop in Burlingame

Human Relations

Nationally known experts are scheduled to address some 150 chapter leaders registered for a workshop on "Making Affirmative Action Work," sponsored by the Human Relations Department of the California Teachers Association (CTA), Dec. 5-6 at the Airport Marina Hotel in Burlingame.

James O. Lewis, CTA human relations executive, said collective bargaining and mandated affirmative action make this year's conference particularly vital. "Federal and state laws on affirmative action require school districts to have programs in operation by January of 1976," Lewis said. "The workshop affords an opportunity for those who will soon be deeply involved to find out the problems and opportunities in this new complex field."

"Collective bargaining adds another dimension of immediacy because all bargaining units will need to know and understand the legal implications of affirmative action mandates to assure adequate response related to obligations and liabilities in agreements reached with school districts."

Nathaniel Jones, of New York, general counsel for the NAACP, opens the conference with a major address following the annual CTA human relations dinner at 7 p.m. in the North Beach Room. His topic is "Affirmative Action — The Challenge and the Promise." Other speakers include CTA president Steve Edwards, CTA vice president Dave Farquhar, and CTA acting executive director Ralph Flynn. Walter Coombs, CTA assistant executive director for programs, will be master of ceremonies, with Joyce Destefanis, of San Carlos, chairwoman of CTA's Human Relations Commission, as convener.

Animal Shelter Opening Slated

Peninsula Humane Society's Board of Directors will host a "preview opening" of their new animal shelter facilities at Coyote Point this week as a thank-you to the people who made the construction possible.

Major donors to the Society's capital funds drive over the past five years will tour the new facilities on Dec. 9. The Annual Meeting of the PHS membership will include an informal open house on Dec. 10.

The construction workers have just finished and we are now in the process of moving furniture. The animals will be moved in shortly after the holidays and we plan a weekend open house for the public in early spring," said Richard Ward, Director of Shelter Services.

Architect of the new facilities is Dushan Horvat, affiliated with Blunk & Associates in Burlingame. The $575,000 addition will provide some 16,500 square feet of needed space.

When the existing Coyote Point facility was built in 1952, experts called it "one of the most modern in the country." The new addition will again give the PHS shelter that distinction, according to Louis R. Goldsmith, President of the Society.

Among its innovative features are:

- A health care plan which provides space to segregate all incoming surrendered animals for observation. This will substantially reduce the risk of exposure to illness among pets available for adoption. Sick animals will receive care in the isolation wing constructed with a $75,000 federal revenue sharing grant.

- Completely separate kennels for "stray" animals and "surrendered" (unwanted) animals. This arrangement will protect surrendered pets, whose health history is usually known from the previous owner, from exposure to diseases from stray pets, whose health history is unknown. It also prevents prospective pet owners from falling in love with a stray dog or cat owned by someone else!

- A film-game-lecture room for people of all ages. The CARE Center will be used mainly by school groups and will contain displays open to the public when the room is not in use. The Center will comfortably hold 50 people and will be available to any community group meeting for an animal-related purpose.

- An attractive adoption center with "acquaintance rooms" where people and their prospective pets can play together. A corps of volunteer adoption specialists who will staff the center have just completed a six-week training course geared to helping a pet owner choose the right animal for his circumstances.

To provide suitable space for the Society's Spay and Neuter Clinic, the PHS staff members were three years ago moved out of offices and into cramped portable trailers adjacent to the shelter. The new facilities will provide adequate office space for both the staff and the visiting public.

Last year, the Peninsula Humane Society's shelters housed more than 42,000 animals. Of these, some 25,000 were stray and over 16,000 were surrendered (another 1,500 were wild creatures being aided by our Wildlife Rehabilitation Dept.). Forty-four per cent of the stray dogs and only two per cent of the stray cats were reclaimed by their owners. More than 3,600 of the animals were adopted by new owners.

"Many animals are apparently being given up because they were thoughtlessly chosen in the first place. Others are being abandoned or allowed to run free because of irresponsibility or outright neglect on the part of the owner."

"To correct these conditions we can't work just with the animals — we have to work with the people. This is the concept of our new facilities. We have great hopes that a comprehensive adoption program and a hard-hitting education program, coupled with our already active spay and neuter program, will have a positive effect on the quality of life for both the animals and the humans who live in San Mateo County," said Goldsmith.

Help Sought by Barbara Bladen Area Agencies

Four local agencies have requested help this week from the Volunteer Bureau-Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County.

JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER — Aides to help in arts, crafts, cooking, and puppetry programs geared for 3 to 10-year-old children. Opportunity to develop and lead programs.

UNICEF — Persons to staff booths in a large department store selling UNICEF Christmas cards. Volunteers work in pairs, and several time slots are available.

VOLUNTEERS IN PROBATION — Volunteers to work as court docents escorting clients to various Hillcrest locations explaining mechanics and functions of court procedure, and supervising young children while parents are in court.

CASA MADONNA — A Russian speaking volunteer to visit a patient on a weekly basis.

More information about these and other job opportunities may be obtained from the Volunteer Bureau at 119 Primrose Road, Burlingame. It is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A branch office is located at Ampex Bldg. 2, 940 Douglas Road, Redwood City. Office hours are 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

A project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County, the bureau shares in the United Way of the Bay Area and is funded in part by the County of San Mateo.

SATIRIC BITE MISSING IN McCLURE'S FANTASY

The American Conservatory Theater meant to be "daring" on premiering a new full-length play by poet-dramatist Michael McClure. After all, he is a playwright with a reputation for writing bizarre stage charades and the glamour of his having "outraged society" (a joke) with his play "The Beard" had us all titillated with anticipation this week when "General Gorgeous" opened in repertory at the Geary Theater.

But lo and behold, it is a conventional play. Offbeat perhaps in its costuming, but basically a straight, family-fare comedy that uses the comic book format as a springboard for his comments on the human condition. He has done this before: notably in "Gorf" and "Gargoyle Cartoons." As a long one-act, "Gorgeous" would be a very funny play. The sight gags almost all work (except for turning him into a chair), there are marvelously amusing literary references woven into the dialogue, and the production is visually stunning. It needs judicious editing. Some lines are repeated over and over and it slackens the pace that

McClure's latest play lacks the bite and satiric edge of his earlier work and he appears to run out of steam shortly after the first act so that the comedic situation becomes an end in itself.

With the exception of Nicholas Cortland's superhero Gorgeous, the acting was strong and sure. In his effort to play the Force of Good with some sense of romantic ideology, he came off as a bumbling numskull with a performance that was monochromatic and stiff.

Barbara Dirickson all but steals the show as Pam the Panda who ponders over philosophical dogma spouted by her paramour, John Paul (read Sartre), a love-sick philosophy student who doesn't seem to notice that she's "black and white and furry." Rick Hamilton swooned and sighed appro- director Ed Hastings vainly tries to maintain priately while conducting an interview for his thesis with Superhero. From the excitement during intermission, I'll wager a panda cult is forming and fan clubs will form to get Miss Dirickson's paw imprint.

Gorgeous is a novice hero. He aspires to join the League of Heroes. To do so, he must meet a series of requirements that include building his own suitably heroic living quarters. He meets this easily by carving his penthouse out of solid rock.

But he's beset by deeper aggravations. His wife wants to have a baby, his Superhero parents, Roar and Mouse Woman, have overstayed their welcome on a visit from their retirement quarters in Miami Beach and the Super Villain, the Blue Mutant, is bugging him for the "secret" the nature of which we never know, but discover it is shaped like an egg.

The Blue Mutant keeps flying in through the aerie window with his two hench persons, Pink Mutations One and Two, adding to the household's confusion. In the end, they submit to the Force of Good, shake hands with their adversary and vow to work for the advancement of better living and social change.

"We'll clear up the rivers and air. We'll give the redwoods the vote," they promise.

Stephen Schnetzer is excellent as the Blue Mutant. He's so good he makes you cheer on the bad guy. Joy Carlin is superb as Mouse Woman, a Viennese bon-bon who has the ability to summon up the mouse people and who got started in the hero business after being frightened when her lover, a nutty writer named Kafka, burst into her room dressed as a cockroach. See what I mean about amusing literary references?

Bringing Liberia Into Local Classroom

By JANET PARKER
Staff Writer

The Hilliard home in South San Francisco is a showcase of African souvenirs and mementoes.

And Pat Hilliard several times a month packs up some of those artifacts and hauls them to schools in the Bay Area.

She is a member of the South San Francisco Unified School District Board of Trustees, a docent at the DeYoung Museum in San Francisco and she has six years of living in Liberia for background.

Ironically, South San Francisco schools have shown little interest in talks of Africa by herself and other DeYoung docents, she said.

But at schools in Millbrae, Hillsborough, San Bruno and across the Peninsula, she has given school-age children a sampling of what her experience in the tiny African nation of Liberia was like.

"It's important for children to be aware of cultural differences," Mrs. Hilliard said.

There's a long way to go in presenting African and other ethnic cultures to children, she added. However, state-mandated multi-cultural programs may help.

She recalls an incident when her own daughter, who spent most of her life in Liberia, came home from school in South San Francisco crying because of the way Africa was presented in her textbooks — barebreasted women and impoverished shacks and huts.

And she cited an East Indian boy who always stood up in class when the teacher came in — only to be sneered at by other students. In his country, standing for a teacher is a custom. Students here didn't know that.

Another custom which might be misunderstood, she said, is that of the Chicano student who has learned to bow his head in respect when being scolded by an adult.

She went to Liberia in 1964 with her husband, who at the time was participating in a program to train Peace Corps volunteers.

She soon learned the Liberian culture is very similar to the American culture in the big cities.

She wasn't satisfied to relax and let her husband do all the work.

"I kept thinking what in the world would I do," she said.

At the American Women's Club of Liberia she suggested that they become involved in something for the country — perhaps volunteers' projects.

She visited agencies and media and finally many of the women were placed where they could help natives.

She worked as a teacher in a Montessori School near the capital of Monrovia.

She was surprised at the way parents pushed their children through schools.

"One parent called and said her child only wanted to play all day," she said. "There's pressure to advance very quickly. But I'd tell them they should play. When they're pushed, they're going to be lacking in some other way."

The main thing, though, is that Liberians value education and want their children to be successful.

Yet, many of the more affluent send their children to school in other countries.

"They're torn between the two," she said.

Many of the customs of the Liberian tribes were learned in visits to the outlying villages, she said. And she discusses those visits with children here.

She recalls seeing small children sitting on street corners in Liberia, reading old tattered books.

"They are so hungry to learn," she said. "Our kids don't really appreciate what they have."

Although there is a great hunger to learn, Americans sometimes overdo their generosity, she said.

When she arrived in the schools she saw the many old textbooks which were sent from the states. They were virtually useless.

"I recognize now that the old books weren't helping them anymore than us," she said. "I recognize they are as attuned to education as we are."

She says she also found how teaching can be accomplished with the bare minimum of supplies. In one rural village, a pocket magnifying glass served as the tool for a lesson, with children inspecting anything available.

"We did a whole session with that and no one was speaking the same language," she said.

When they returned to the U.S. in 1970, she said, they were anxious to share their artifacts with museums. She went to the Oakland Museum, hoping to arrange a show of artifacts by herself and the other 50-some-odd persons from the Bay Area who went to Liberia on the government program. She found there wasn't a great deal of interest.

But, from that search, she did get in touch with DeYoung Museum and learned of the docent program. She studied there and became a docent. Last year she was director of training for the African program.

In lessons at schools, she often uses the souvenirs from Liberia. For one lesson, she took trial masks and discussed the different kinds, including some children might even use — eyeglasses, a hat or make-up. Instead of just laughing at the peculiar mask expressions, they learn masks have a significant value in that culture, just as a mortarboard has a significant meaning in a ceremony here.

"There are vast cultural differences here," she said. "We really ought to take advantage of it."

D & B DISTR. DALY CITY, CALIF.

San Mateo County Computer Crime Aid: Future Cloudy

By DUANE SANDUL
—Analysis—

Are the elected officials of every city in San Mateo County willing to pledge a share of a projected $800,000 annual budget for a proposed criminal justice sharing information computer system?

County Manager M. D. Tarshes wants that question answered before he makes a recommendation to the Board of Supervisors on their willingness to pick up half the tab annually.

And, it appears, the decision of city councils is going to have to precede the results of a two-year study to determine the cost-benefit of such a computer system.

For nearly two years now, the concept has been developed and funded (by great acceptance) by representatives of the Criminal Justice Council of San Mateo County.

Police chiefs and Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson are the primemovers in support of the concept.

But the cost has some officials throughout the county worried in these times of economic restraint.

And Tarshes' push for commitments from the cities at this time has at least one city manager up in arms.

Simplified, the issue boils down to this: Within the next two or three weeks, Tarshes will make a recommendation to the supervisors to accept or reject a grant (which requires $10,000 local money) for the first-year of the study-implementation period.

By next March, he will make a recommendation concerning acceptance or rejection of the second-year grant (with about a $70,000 local figure).

At a recent meeting of the Criminal Justice Council, executive assistant George Riley informed the 25 members that Tarshes wanted a commitment from the cities.

"That comes as a shock to me," said council member Michael J. Barrett from Redwood City. "I thought that the county and the cities had reached an understanding."

Supervisor John M. Ward, a council member, said: "It's one thing to talk about managers' commitments, but what about the city councils, which are the decision making bodies?"

"This is a helluva time to come up with that," Daly City Manager David Rowe said of Tarshes' request for a commitment from the cities.

"To get 19 city councils to act on anything takes six months, and it's a helluva idea that you want it to go before 1976 councils," Rowe said. The reference apparently was to municipal elections next March.

"For the county to have sat on their hands for so long and suggesting this length procedure... well, I've said enough," Rowe added.

Tarshes, in an interview this week, defended his request. He also noted that he would be willing to have a partial "feeling" from at least some cities within the next few weeks, and is hopeful of a decision by all of them by next March. Those timetables are important, because if the county refuses the grant, the program, for all intents and purposes, is dead.

Said Tarshes, "There's no reason for any of us to become involved in a program with the cost implications and operation implications — it's not just the cost of a study that I'm concerned unless there is support."

It's important for the city councils and the Board of Supervisors to understand that implementation of this program would cost from $700,000 to $800,000 per year.

"I told the city managers recently (at a meeting) that it is frustrating for the county to undertake a project which entails services to the county and to the cities, and to put our money into it, unless their was an indication that the city councils supported taking a look at the study," Tarshes explained.

He emphasized that he too understands that the results of the study on cost-benefit won't be for nearly two years. But, the county manager added, if the cities are now against it, there is no need to accept the grants for the studies.

The computerized system is called Participatory Records and Information System (PRISM). Besides providing important police information, the system would also contain information pertinent to courts, private attorneys appointed by the court and "management," which makes statistical information concerning crime.

Millbrae councilman Arthur Lepore, a member of the Criminal Justice Council, said at a recent meeting, "I can assure you that there won't be many councilmen committed to PRISM when they look at the cost."

That's the type of information Marty Tarshes is after.

Newlyweds Will Reside in Alaska

Fairbanks, Alaska, where the bridegroom is stationed with the Army, will be the first home for Mr. and Mrs. Glen Paul Zachreson Jr. (Debra Ann Dunlap).

The couple was married recently at the Millbrae Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

They received felicitations at a reception at the Hillsdale Inn and are honeymooning in Southern California.

Debra is the daughter of Cmdr. and Mrs. Larry E. Dunlap of San Mateo. Glen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Zachreson of San Bruno.

The bride wore a white satin dress styled along Empire lace with a lace overlay on the bodice, long-fitted lace sleeves, a high collar and a long lace train.

She carried a cascade of white baby roses and baby's breath.

Elisa Smith of Belmont was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Lori Dunlap, Debra's sister, and Erin Foley of San Mateo. They wore gowns of sea green crepe dresses with scoop necks and short, puffed sleeves. The honor attendant carried white carnations and yellow roses and the bridesmaids chose yellow roses and baby's breath tied with ribbon.

Nicki Zachreson, sister of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a sea green crepe dress and carried a basket of rose petals.

Ryan Zachreson was his brother's best man and another brother, Randy Sachreson, shared ushering duties with Mike Dunlap, brother of the bride.

Debra is also the sister of Larry Dunlap and Carol Robinson. She attended Hillsdale High School and is a member of the Loma Prieta Chapter of the Sierra Club.

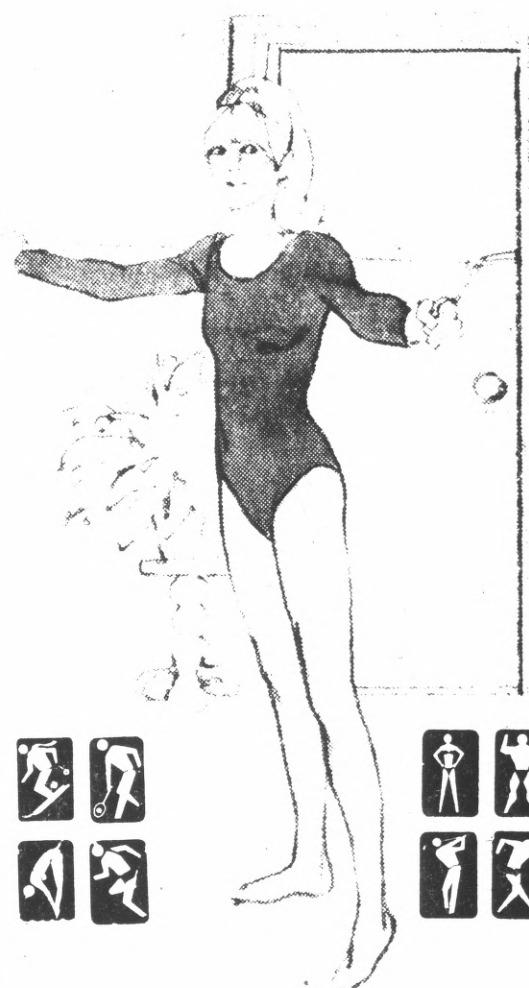

Glen is also the brother of Mike, Dan, April and Greg Zachreson and of Beverly Athas. He attended South San Francisco High School where he was a member of the drama club and the choir.

Fitzgerald: Evaluate ABAG Goals

A recommendation that the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) be evaluated as to its goals and performance has been advanced by James V. Fitzgerald, chairman of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Fitzgerald made the proposal in a letter to Warren Boggess, president of ABAG, and in letters to chairmen of boards of supervisors of the other eight Bay Area counties and to mayors of 91 Bay Area cities.

Fitzgerald said that he has just finished serving on a special committee evaluating the role and performance of the Bay Area Sewage Services Agency, and the results of the evaluation will be forthcoming in the near future.

The board chairman said he believes the evaluation was "extremely interesting and worthwhile" and that a similar evaluation should be made of ABAG.

School Finance Overhaul Advocated

The last time the state had a major overhaul in school financing was in 1937. Ralph Flynn, acting executive director of the California Teachers Association, told members of the Governmental Research Council of San Mateo, Nov. 25.

"As a result," he said at a meeting in the auditorium of the General Electric Co. in Burlingame, "we have a Rubie Goldberg device that is wondrous to behold."

School financing and educational research are the two areas where the educational system can be overhauled, according to Flynn.

"The elementary system is still structured to turn out production workers," Flynn claimed. "The bell is still ringing. The public school system was created to serve an industrial society, and that society has changed."

One member of the audience asked how much effort is being made to say to school systems, "Here are the standards," and to require them to meet them. "Obviously we are not doing enough," Flynn said.

Flynn said he recently completed a survey in which he found parents of elementary aged children are the most supportive of school systems, while parents of children in high school are "somewhat less."

He said that parents of children out of the system "are still supportive," while "people without children are the most critical."

Flynn told his audience that while parents feel their children are getting better educations now than they did, they feel because of the greater demands, their children are not getting enough education.

The prime cost of education is always for labor, according to Flynn, and the costs under S.B. 160 will depend on what the California School Boards Association does.

He said if they will accept the California Teachers Association as representing teachers it will cost nothing, but if they demand an election the costs will go up.

The bill, he said, will place labor negotiations in a "more constructive channel," and he cited the recent South San Francisco school strike as lasting two and a half weeks longer than it should have.

"If people are going to strike, they are going to strike," he said. If this takes place, "you can still go to the courts which have the injunctive power."

"The most fascinating thing taking place is the binding arbitration process," Flynn maintained.

He said Ohio is completing its first year in which strikes among public employees are outlawed, and the process goes to "the last, best offer."

Asked about how one can bring about great community participation in the school system, Flynn answered, "I live here in San Mateo, a transient community. I see my neighbors come and go. There is a minimal sense of community. This is really a massive question, and I don't know the answer to it."

School financing, Flynn said, is "a classic example of you can't see the forest because of the trees. And the forest is falling down. My initial reaction to this is we have had a whole set of "Band-Aid legislation" when we need a major overhaul in school financing."

The federal government contributes only 7 per cent to local financing, he said. The state share has gone down from 50 per cent a few years ago to close to one-third. The rest comes from local taxes — "one hell of a burden."

DONATION

San Francisco author Ruth Freeman Solomon has donated her three autographed books to the new Serramonte Library, Daly City. They are "The Ultimate Triumph," "The Eagle and the Dove" and "The Candlesticks and the Cross." Her new book, "Two Lives, Two Lands," was published Dec. 1 and it completes the trilogy to the last two books.

After Rough Start Retail Sales Will Improve

The first six months of 1975 have been rough for retail merchants in the 16 counties of Northern Coastal California.

However, according to a just-published report by Security Pacific Bank, merchants can be optimistic about increasing sales through the next few months and into the new year.

While personal income in the state grew at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of about nine per cent during 1975's second quarter, consumers witnessed increases in the Consumer Price Index at an 11 per cent annual rate. For businessmen, this decline in actual buying power meant stagnating inventories and less profit return on the sales dollar.

According to Security Pacific Bank's latest Monthly Summary of Business Conditions in the Northern Coastal Counties of California, after allowing for higher prices "real" total taxable sales in the 16 counties during the first six months of 1975 were, for the most part, behind the same period in 1974. On the brighter side, current dollar sales showed strength exceeding the statewide gain in percentage terms. Retail merchants in the region "rang up" sales of more than $5.9 billion during the first half of this year, some 6.8 per cent (or $397 million) greater than 1974's first half receipts. For the state, the period-to-period growth in retail sales rose 6.4 per cent.

"While retail sales have been depressed for the last year, a number of important economic indicators point to increasing sales activity for Northern California," predicts Tom Graves, manager of the bank's Northern California Economic Research Division. "Stockpiles of inventories are moving well, there will be continuing gains in employment, the average weekly earnings of manufacturing workers are inching higher, and inflation, while still very high, is losing much of its thrust — contributing to a boost in personal income and consumer spending power."

The Summary also notes that the total volume of taxable retail sales in the 16 Northern Coastal counties accounted for 26 per cent of the estimated statewide total, ranking the area second among the five major regions of the state.

Reflecting growth trends of the whole state, the categories of retail stores in the Northern Coastal counties showing the largest growth in percentage terms were: food stores, eating and drinking establishments, and drug stores. Poor performers included stores selling home furnishings and appliances, and stores selling building materials and farm implements.

"While 'big ticket' goods such as major appliances and autos have been slow sellers, many of these purchases were deferred for several months as a result of consumers' anxiety over the state of the economy and their unwillingness to incur new debt obligations during uncertain economic conditions," reports Graves. "We're predicting that these conditions will be steadily improving in the months ahead, favorably influencing retail sales."

BUYING THE FIRST TICKET

Noel Mertens and Mrs. Julian Fernando purchase tickets for the annual New Year's Eve Dinner/Dance to be held at Our Lady of Mercy Parish Hall on Dec. 31, beginning at 7 p.m. The theme, "Freedom and Frolic," will feature a sit down steak dinner served at 9 p.m. Dancing will follow with Al Borelli's Band. Tickets at $25 a couple can be obtained by calling Mrs. Julian Fernando, 992-1914.

Sabbath Service Changed

Due to the Dec. 5th Shabbat dinner at Congregation B'nai Israel, the normal format for Sabbath services will not occur at the usual time.

Dec. 5 services will commence at 7:15 p.m. at B'nai Israel Congregation, 1575 Annie Street, Daly City, conducted by Rabbi Ira Book, and assisted by Cantor Jacob Graudenz, who will chant the liturgy.

Services will conclude early enough to enable the congregation to attend the Second Family Shabbat Dinner, sponsored by the parent-teacher organization of the synagogue.

Shabbat morning services will continue at 11 a.m.

Services on the shabbat morning will be conducted by Rabbi Ira Book, assisted by Cantor Jacob Graudenz and the religious school students.

Kiddush, prepared by members of the Bat Mitzvah and Bar Mitzvah classes, will be served at the conclusion of Shabbat morning services.

Rabbi Book extends an invitation to the community at large to attend these beautiful and meaningful Junior Congregation services held each Shabbat (Saturday) morning, commencing at 11 a.m. in the sanctuary of Congregation B'nai Israel, 1575 Annie Street, Daly City.

Dinner, Dance Slated For New Year's Eve

Reservations are now being accepted for the annual New Year's Eve dinner-dance, sponsored by the Sisterhood of Congregation B'nai Israel according to chairwomen Renatta Stehman and Nancy Sen-nett.

The event will be held in the templehouse of the synagogue, 1575 Annie Street, Daly City.

The evening will commence with no-host cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at 7:30 p.m. and dinner at 8:30 p.m.

Dancing to the music of Billy Catalano and his orchestra will be one of the highlights of the New Year's Eve dinner-dance.

Roni Miller and Harriette Shain are in charge of reservations and suggest that those interested call early since space is limited.

There will be no tickets sold at the door. The donation for this evening is $30 a couple.

Much Autumn Foliage Color On the Peninsula

By IVA NEWMAN

It isn't every year that trees on the Peninsula provide the stunning autumn foliage colors that are present this year. We do have some autumn color but it takes very special weather conditions to produce the brilliance of this year's colors.

The color changes that take place as deciduous trees prepare to drop their leaves is caused by short days and cool nights. Both stimulate the corklike cells at the base of the leaf stems that halt the flow of nutrients to the leaves. The manufacture of chlorophyll ceases and as its green color fades the chemicals, carotin and xanthophyll are released, turning the leaves yellow. When the short days are sunny and night temperatures dip below 45 degrees, forcing the corklike layers to form before the sugars or tannins drain away, they combine with other substances to produce the red pigment, anthocyanin, that stains the leaves crimson.

This fall, the Peninsula autumn color began early when the Lombardy poplar, Populus nigra italica, foliage became a rich yellow. We saw several of these tall, stately trees in full color as we drove about the Peninsula. While this tree is beautiful, especially in the fall, we don't recommend it for gardens smaller than an acre in size and then the planting location would need to be chosen with care. The root system is shallow, spreading and voracious. If they are pruned annually in the fall, with a sharp spade at a distance of about 12 feet from the base of the tree they could be made safer. Regular feeding also helps to prevent the roots from stretching out in search of food. Even so, they should be planted at least 50 feet from drains, sewers, and other installations.

The Chinese Pistache, Pistacia chinensis, produces some of the most beautiful autumn color imaginable. We have this tree in our front garden at the corner of Summit Drive and Tiptoe Lane. It is a roundheaded tree with arching branches that spread widely from a short, stout trunk. The leaves are composed of five to six pairs of small, lance-shaped leaflets arranged feather fashion. The leaves are red when they first appear in spring and bright green when mature and in the fall they become vivid orange and red before they fall. Our tree is 17 years old and it has been beautiful since it was four years old. It is deep-rooted and tolerates drought. It requires little or no pruning, needs no special feeding, has been completely free of pests and diseases and has not been watered even once in the last ten years. It's truly a minimum care tree.

The Sweet Gum, Liquidambar styraciflua, is another tree that provides beautiful fall color when planted where the sun can reach it. We planted one to hide a telephone pole just outside our back fence. It does that job beautifully but doesn't give us one bit of fall color as the Live oaks have grown up around it until it gets no sun. This tree also has a deep root system that makes it a safe tree for any place in the garden that needs a symmetrical, pyramidal shaped tree. The Liquidambar has a tall, straight trunk with interesting corky branches and star-shaped leaves. It likes a deep, fertile, moist loam. It needs plenty of water, good drainage and an application of nitrogen fertilizer in spring.

Two oak trees give us beautiful fall color. The Scarlet Oak, Quercus coccinea, is a graceful open-growing tree with slender spreading branches with willow-like twigs that are covered with silky-smooth leaves that are bright red when they unfurl in spring, become bright green and in the fall turn blazing scarlet. The Red Oak, Quercus borealis, has a pyramidal shape when young, but matures to a roundheaded specimen with stout wide-spreading branches. The leaves are large, deeply lobed and turn dark red before dropping in the fall. Leslie Mayne, our local arborist, says there is a beautiful Red Oak at the corner of Redwood Drive and Uplands. These oak trees have roots that go deep with many spreading laterals and they are rather rapid growers. They have no special fertilizer or moisture requirements. They do occasionally get scale and caterpillars. Spraying with malathion in spring is recommended as a preventive.

Three maples add a great deal to the beauty of Peninsula gardens large and small. Acer palmatum Dissectum, the Japanese Lace-leaf maple has leaves finely cut into threadlike segments. This tree gets to about four feet in height with a spread slightly greater than its height. It has weeping branches that give the little tree a mounding look. The new leaves open pinkish in color, become bright green then brilliant red in the fall. This tree is excellent for the small garden or for a tubed plant. Acer palmatum, the Japanese maple, makes a small tree for a shady area. It is particularly good when combined with azaleas as it needs protection from the wind. The leaves are interesting all year long. They are a clear, bright red in the spring, a soft green during summer and bright scarlet in the fall before they drop. These too, make good tub plants. The vine maple is rather rare on the Peninsula. This is Acer circinnatum, a native of the Pacific Coast. The Vine maple has twisted ropelike branches which etly of soils but does best in a fairly fertile, moist soil. This tree should never be pruned after growth starts in the spring. This is true for most and the veining resemble the leaflets of the maidenhair fern. This tree is a survivor of the Ice Age when glaciers wiped out the ginkgo everywhere except in China. Surviving as a living fossil, the ginkgo is one of our most popular trees. In the wild it is known to grow up to 80 feet high but in cultivation its average height is about 35 feet. In youth it is a bit awkward but with a bit of age it becomes a well-proportioned tree. It is available in both male and female forms. However, the female's fruits can be quite messy.

Gardening

sometimes sprawl along the ground. The leaves are large, many-lobed and turn a brilliant red and orange before they fall. It is deep rooted, tolerates a wide vari-maples. If you like bright, clear yellow in your fall foliage color, as we do, you will want a Ginkgo biloba, Maidenhair tree. The leaf shape

Dec. 4 Performance

Muscular Dystrophy benefit

Circus Vargas, America's newest and largest under canvas circus has scheduled a special benefit performance on Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. to aid the local chapter of Muscular Dystrophy.

One hundred per cent of the gate proceeds will be turned over to the charitable organization for research to find a cure for M.D.

The opening night performance will include all the animals and performers of the big new show along with Cliff Vargas, owner and manager, in a special salute to the people of San Francisco.

Vargas will be making a rare appearance as ringmaster in the tradition of circuses in years gone by. The colorful circus owner will introduce the glittering galaxy of internationally acclaimed circus artists from the four corners of the globe.

Highlighting the nights activities will be the introduction of the chairman of the local chapter of M.D., who will be presented with a pledge for gate proceeds from this special show.

Worthy organizations to get day at circus

Approximately 5,000 happy circus fans from Cerebral Palsy Center, Mental Health Association, Recreational Center for the Handicapped, and Multiple Sclerosis Society will enjoy a day at America's largest under-canvas circus — on the house!

The special performance of Circus Vargas is planned for Dec. 5 at noon.

"In every city we play, we are always delighted to set aside time for a special, free performance for particularly worthy organizations," says Clifford E. Vargas, president of the big show. "These shows bring us among the best, most appreciative audiences we ever welcome!"

Hundreds of gifted performers and animals from across the world are featured in the 1975 Circus Vargas production.

Benefit circus parade

An old-fashioned circus parade to benefit Muscular Dystrophy will be held at 6:45 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, just north of Tanforan Shopping Center, San Bruno.

The parade will start on Noor Avenue, turn south on Seabiscuit Avenue and terminate at Sneath Lane and Huntington Avenue.

Circus Vargas will open at Tanforan at the conclusion of the parade, with a percentage of the opening night proceeds going to Muscular Dystrophy.

Over 25 bands and marching units will join the elephants, clowns, and circus performers, including the Stanford University Band, The Weldonians, Oceana High School Band, The Mounted Patrol of San Mateo and the Gold Diggers Junior Drill Team.

Also represented in the San Bruno parade will be the Silver Creek High School Drum and Bell Corps, San Francisco Scout Pipe Band, Ravenswood High School, Navy R.O.T.C. Color Guard, St. Francis High School Band, Sacred Heart Kazoo Band, Marine Corps Reserve

Color Guard, Civil Air Patrol Color Guard and San Francisco State University Aerospace Studies Color Guard.

In addition, performers will include the Barbara Fraser Guitar Group, Shumacher's School of Dance, Murphy's Irish Dancers, Bhagdad Studios, The Dance Institute, The Sailorettes and the Kung Fu Karate School.

Other parade groups are the Bay Area's 240-Z Owners, Pre-48 Club, the 4-H Club and the Menlo Park Fire Department.

'Lucky Lady' Premier Set

A special premiere showing on Dec. 21 of the new film, "Lucky Lady," starring Liza Minnelli, Burt Reynolds and Gene Hackman, will benefit the San Mateo County Easter Seal Society.

The showing will be at the Hillsdale Cinema, San Mateo.

Free champagne will be served prior to the film.

Celebrities have been invited to attend, and continuous entertainment will be provided throughout the evening.

In conjunction with the event, Bay Meadows Race Track will award tickets to the weekly "Ladies Day" during the month of December.

The film, by 20th Century-Fox, is set in the 1930's during prohibition and tells the story of three people who are seeking their fortune in rum-running off the Mexican-American coast.

Nairne Ward, president of the board of directors for the society, noted that proceeds from the premiere will help provide locally supported rehabilitative services to handicapped persons throughout the county.

"Through our rehabilitative workshop, we train people with physical disabilities to become contributing members of our community," said Ms. Ward. "The greatest service we can provide to a handicapped person is to help him realize his own usefulness."

Tickets cost $10. Easter Seal Society office at 1764 Marco Polo Way in Burlingame. (telephone: 697-8924), or at the Bay Meadows Race Track in San Mateo.

Free Lecture On Foot Care

A free lecture sponsored by the San Mateo County Diabetes Association will be held Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m., 225 West 37th Ave., San Mateo in the multipurpose room of the Health and Welfare Building.

There will be two guest speakers for the evening.

They will be Doctor Ellis Pizzi and Doctor Thomas Gebhardt, podiatrists.

Their topic for the evening will be "The Proper Care Of Our Feet." The program also will include a slide presentation.

Skyline's Christine Case Helping U.S. Find Bacterial Waste Answers

The U.S. Navy is anxious to learn something about the effectiveness of bacteria degradation of domestic and industrial waste in the frigid waters of the Arctic.

In hopes of finding some answers, a Skyline College biology instructor, Christine Case, is travelling to Alaska this month.

In the company of her husband, Bob, a biology instructor at Merritt and Canada colleges, she will fly to Barrow, Alaska to begin three weeks of intensive study under the sponsorship of the Office of Naval Research in Arlington, Va.

The study, which will take them to the farthest northern point in the western hemisphere, concerns itself primarily with the capacity of the tundra to degrade and recycle waste from both household and industrial sources.

"Our emphasis will be on oil spills," Christine said, adding that "it would be nice to have access to an actual spill, but they are far away from the area where we will be."

The entire project will take one year to complete.

Christine explained that the three weeks in December will be devoted to collecting field samples at the Naval Arctic Research Lab, and the balance of her work will be done in her laboratory at Skyline College.

The attractive Skyline instructor applied for this project because, "I like the idea of microbiology study in the field. Last summer I visited the Naval Arctic Research Station and am familiar with the facilities in which I would be working. During my visit to Barrow, I stayed with an eskimo family and also camped out and thus have used this practical experience in outlining my experimental procedures."

As a microbiologist, Christine Case has done a great deal of work concerning domestic wastewater reclamation, sewage disposal and degradation and eutrophication (aging of a body of water) of watercourses due to domestic waste. She has held her position at Skyline College since 1971.

Manpower Group Seeks Support

San Mateo County is divided into six Community Manpower Council (CMC) planning districts.

These CMCs were formed to involve representation throughout each district from minority neighborhoods and organizations, other consumer and community-based organizations, city governments, providers of manpower supportive services, interested voluntary organizations, businesses, individuals and organized labor.

CMC District II is Millbrae, San Bruno, South San Francisco and Brisbane. The voting membership consists of 13 representatives: four votes representing one from each city, five votes representing agencies in the district, and four votes representing the community at large.

Of the five agency votes, two are from educational agencies, one is from a UBAC agency, and two are from job development agencies.

The CMC of District II is currently recruiting for one of the voting educational agencies in this district. This would include Skyline College, which already is a voting member, San Bruno Park School District, Brisbane Elementary School District, Millbrae Elementary School District, San Mateo Union High School District and South San Francisco Unified School District.

We also are recruiting two community-at-large representatives who reside in the district.

We are looking for representatives who can provide input to us on what the needs of their communities are.

This input will assist in the on-going planning and decision-making process for the county's manpower funds.

The duties of these representatives are to attend monthly CMC meetings which are held the second Thursday of each month at 6 p.m. at one of the participating agencies.

Members also participate occasionally at meetings or workshops to help plan for manpower needs in the county.

The next CMC meeting will be Dec. 11, at 6 p.m. at the new Information and Referral Center at Hillside and School Streets in South San Francisco.

The election of a chairperson, vice chairperson and secretary also will be held at this meeting.

Call Linda Page at 583-3083 or Larry Smith at 873-4145 for further information.

Samuel Chandler

"Help! My child won't eat right." Sensing the frustration of parents who can lead their children to the table but can't make them eat, Antoinette Hatfield and Peggy Stanton have produced a book with "Help! My Child Won't Eat Right" as the title.

Entering the same field, Jane Margulies and Eve Kaufman have published "The Healthy Family Cookbook" while "Redbook", a periodical, has published in its September 1975 issue an article entitled "A Redbook Guide to Good Food for Small Children."

All three stress the point that "Eating should be two things: nutritious and enjoyable."

To make nutritious food enjoyable the authors tell parents that "meals for children don't have to follow a rigid 'must have' pattern." The trick, writes Margulies and Kaufman, is "to choose and prepare healthy, good-tasting foods for your family" . . . with food that can be "pureed for babies, chopped up for toddlers, and left as is, to be enjoyed by everyone else from the age of two on up."

Lost cooking a meal that affords such a variety seems a horrible task, the authors offer many recipes.

For example "chicken rapunzel with apples and raisins." To make it, you cut the chicken into serving pieces and saute it in safflower oil; saute onion slices in the leftover oil, then place the chicken, onion in a casserole and add apples, raisins, thyme and apple juice and bake for 30 minutes.

The recipe is on page 82 of the Margulies and Kaufman book. The authors write that such a meal can be fed to anyone over six months.

Along with the provision of food that is both nutritious and enjoyable the authors of the above named books and articles advise parents to set the stage for "relative calm."

"Let the meal be in a place where it's no disaster when milk is spilled, and where rice, bananas and other flying or falling foods can be easily cleaned from the floor." The authors remind parents that total serenity and neat table manners are acquired skills with the acquisition starting in the company of parents who do not "expect children to start out eating like adults."

The authors of the "Redbook" article record this timely advice.

"Small portions are not only easier for children to eat but also are more appealing — half cups of milk or juice; small finger foods and wedges of meat and cheese; halves of hard-cooked eggs."

They remind parents of a few facts — "children don't eat as fast as adults and have no clear idea of time. Give them plenty of time to enjoy the adventure of eating and exploring foods." . . . "Children grow at different rates and their food requirements are different accordingly. Don't worry if your child is eating less and growing at a slower pace than someone else's child of the same age."

"If you push children to eat, they soon realize that they have the upper hand and that their refusal is an effective weapon."

The authors write "the greater the variety of nutritious foods you keep on hand, the more foods children are apt to develop a taste for and the more flexible their meals can be."

They also state that "small children get a lot of their nourishment from between meal snacks. . . . Resist being lured into buying snack foods, such as potato chips, sweet sodas, rich cookies and candies, that provide too many calories in relation to essential nutrients. Stock up on good snacks instead." The article includes recipes for such snacks.

Aside from the advice, the three books, "Help! My Child Won't Eat Right," "The Healthy Family Cookbook," and the "Redbook" article, contain recipes for meals that make your mouth water.

Good morning, good cooks.

With all the exciting activities that the month of December holds, there is one that should be done right now and then set aside and forgotten until Christmas. That one is . . . bake a fruitcake.

I am the first to admit that baking fruit cake is not a simple, easy or inexpensive project but the recipe I want to share with you is simpler, easier and less expensive than most and makes a delicious, dark, spicy cake.

HOLIDAY FRUITCAKE

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon mace
- 1 1/2 cups candied pineapple
- 1 cup candied red cherries, halved
- 1 cup candied green cherries, halved
- 1 cup golden raisins
- 1 cup dark raisins
- 1 1/2 cups pecan halves
- 1 cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup milk

Line the bottom of a 10-inch tube pan with waxed paper. Grease and flour well. Heat oven to 300-degrees.

Sift together the two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon each salt and nutmeg and one-fourth teaspoon mace. Add the one and one-half cup candied pineapple, one cup each candied red and green cherries, one cup each golden and dark raisins, one and one-half cups pecan halves and one cup rolled oats. Stir to coat the fruit and nuts evenly with flour mixture.

Beat the four eggs until light and fluffy; gradually beat in the two cups brown sugar; half cup oil and one cup milk. Add to fruit mixture and blend well.

Pour the batter into prepared tube pan. Bake in 300-degree oven about two and one-half hours. Test with toothpick or cake tester to see when finished.

Loosen edges with knife and set on rack to cool completely before removing from pan.

When cool, peel off the waxed paper and wrap tightly and store in cool place to ripen.

If you wish, you may wrap cake in cheese cloth-soaked in brandy or bourbon before wrapping in saran.

Coast Carnivals Set

The Pacifica Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department will be sponsoring cartoon carnivals for the next two weeks at the following community centers:

Dec. 3, Ortega, Dec. 4, Linda Mar; Dec. 5, Crespi; Dec. 8 Pacific Manor;

Dec. 9, Vallemar; Dec. 10, Cabrillo; Dec. 11 at Westview; and Dec. 12 at Fairmont.

The cartoons will run from 3:45-4:45 p.m. Admission is 15 cents.

Popcorn and punch will be on sale during the carnivals.

GIRLS GLEE SINGS FOR HOSPITAL

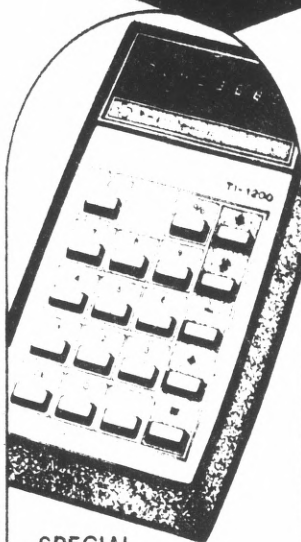

Members of the Westmoor High School Girls' Chorus recently brought a little cheer with their music for the patients at the St. Francis Heights Convalescent Hospital. Their music represented preparation for the coming Christmas and Hanukkah seasons. They sang new music composed by members of the music theory class as well as featured student leaders directing several selections. Taking turns with the baton were Pat Newell, Karen Thomas, Lisbeth Langensand and Peri Drake. Theresa Render was at the piano accompanying most of their singing.

Career Series At SF State

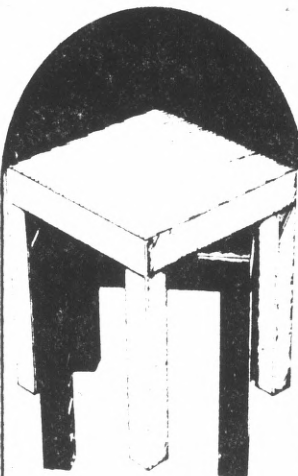

New directions will expand for the job seeker and career changer in a flat economy through a timely "Life Work Shop" extension course at San Francisco State University. This "Life Work Shop" A Practical Program for Job Hunters and Career Changers meets December 5, all-day December 6, and December 10 in HLL 156 on-campus. The extension fee is $30. The class will explore four areas critical to job hunters and career changers. Students will discover their marketable skills and talents, learn information-gathering techniques to find outlets for their aptitudes, clarify life goals and investigate obstacles, such as under and over-qualification and lack of experience. Instructor Alan Javurek is a career consultant at San Francisco State University.

Octagon Gallery Serigraph Show

Bay Area artists Richard Fiscus and Toby Klayman have a collection of serigraphs on exhibit at Octagon Gallery in Daly City Civic Center, 90th and Sullivan, through Jan. 2.

Richard Fiscus is a Bay Area teacher and artist who has gained national acclaim in the past few years for his distinctive style of bold and colorful works.

Rural America is Fiscus's favorite subject matter, with special emphasis on the rolling hills, small towns, coastlines and fogs of the Bay Area.

A native of Stockton, Fiscus has been a teacher of humanities at the San Francisco Art Institute for 20 years.

Artist, Toby Judith Klayman of San Francisco has 10 serigraphs on display at Octagon. She printed this suite of serigraphs in 1972 in her studio in San Francisco.

Included in the collection are "Self Portrait" and "Charlie."

Friends Plan Two Events

This week the Friends of the Daly City Library will hold two events at the Westlake Branch.

On Dec. 3, 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., under chairmanship of Mrs. Emmett Tierney, members of the Friends will sell handcrafted bookmarks, including many of holiday designs.

Proceeds will benefit the library.

On Dec. 4, 10 a.m., "Sun and Shadow," recently published autobiography which recounts the life of the blind educator and musician Rose Resnick, will be discussed by the author for the Friends and their guests in the Coral Room. The public may attend free of charge.

Miss Resnick, who lost her sight at the age of two, is executive director of the California League for the Handicapped, a private, non-profit agency providing year-round programs of training and therapeutic recreation for blind children and youth. She is also the job counseling and placement for handicapped adults, and social adjustment for the newly and elderly blind.

Miss Resnick's first accomplishment in the field of social welfare was the founding of the first camp in the west for blind children, patterned after those for sighted boys and girls.

Louanne Heath

Phone 755-1579

The successful completion of this venture led to her life work with the blind and handicapped.

Mrs. Wayne Jarvis, assisted by Elvera Sunnell and Mrs. Nick Matve, will be hostesses at the coffee hour preceding the discussion.

Mrs. Joseph Canada, book review chairman, will accept reservations at the program for the no-host luncheon honoring Miss Resnick, which will be held at Mike's Restaurant, Serra Bowl, Colma, following the event.

Mrs. Virginia Tierney wants to remind everyone that this is the day to shop for bookmarks at the Westlake Branch of the Daly City library.

The bookmarks are handmade by members of the Friends of the Daly City Library and funds from their sale are used to benefit the libraries in Daly City.

Committee members will be in the library from 10:30 a.m.-8 p.m. to help you select the right bookmarks for your gift list or personal use.

The sale will open at 10 a.m. on Dec. 13 and close at 6 p.m. On Dec. 14, the boutique will be open 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

For more information about the sale, call Mrs. Kanon, 878-5275.

St. Andrews Slates Cultural Festivities

In preparation for Christmas, St. Andrews Catholic Church will present "Misa Criolla" Dec. 8 and "Las Posadas" on Dec. 12 at their new center at Southgate and Sullivan Avenues, Daly City.

On Dec. 8 at 7:30 p.m., St. Andrews' Church will present the "Dancers Circle," under the direction of choreographer Genia Simpson, in their interpretation of the "Misa Criolla" by Ariel Ramirez.

These eight dancers bring a special dimension to the worship service as they move through the congregation in their colorful skirts and shawls of Argentine culture.

This dynamic, spiritual performance of the Mass based on the rhythms and traditions of Hispanic America is open to the public.

"Las Posadas," a traditional Spanish ceremony, will be presented by the children on Dec. 12 at St. Andrews' Center at 7:30 p.m.

With procession and candlelight, the children will re-enact the journey that Mary and Joseph made to Bethlehem searching for a resting place.

The evening will end with a party including pinatas.

Arrest Ends Check Passing

Thomas Gregory Johnson, 24, of Berkeley, was arrested by San Bruno police Monday after he allegedly passed eight bad checks totalling some $600 at the J.C. Penney store at Tanforan Shopping Center.

Police said all the checks bore Johnson's name and address, but had insufficient funds covering them.

He is being held on check fraud charges in lieu of $5,000 bail, it was learned.

CHEERS!

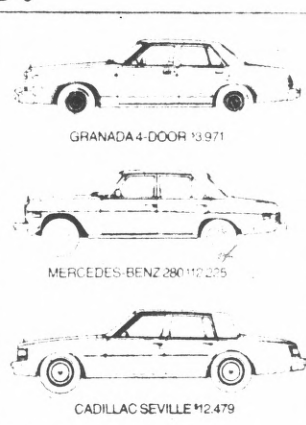

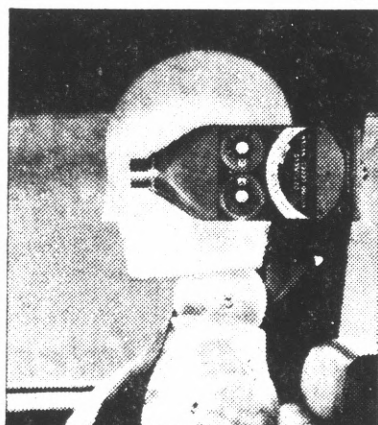

Vivian Duncan of "Topsy and Eva" fame, Mrs. McRobert Stewart and Mrs. Frank Terranova, (from left) toast the success of the wine tasting and mini-boutique which will be presented Dec. 10 at the Westlake Community Center, 148 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City. During the 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. event, guitarist Maria Virjo will perform, and several awards will be made including an oil painting, crocheted afghan and crewel embroidery picture. Mrs. Teglia, president of the North Peninsula Auxiliary of Florence Crittenton Services which is sponsoring the event, has appointed Mrs. Stewart as chairman. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Terranova or Mrs. Murray H. Freedman.

Review of County's Park Plan

The proposed approach and methodology for conducting the review and revision of the Parks and Recreation Element of the San Mateo County General Plan has received the endorsement of the county Board of Supervisors.

The proposed review plan was approved last month at a joint meeting of the county Parks and Recreation and Planning commissions.

One of the main features of the review will be the appointment of a citizens advisory committee which will serve to keep the planning staff, commissioners and the Board of Supervisors apprised of community values and needs with respect to county parks and recreation development.

The recommendation is for the appointment of an 18-member committee by the Board of Supervisors. However, Supervisor John M. Ward said he would like to see the appointment of two additional members to represent the Governmental Research Council and the San Mateo Community College District.

The committee proposed by the commissions would have five public members representing the north, mid, south and coastal areas of the county, and single members each from the Regional Planning Committee, the Sierra Club, the Committee for Green Foothills, the League of Women Voters, the county Planning Commission, the county Parks and Recreation Commission, the county Board of Education, the Peninsula Manufacturers Association, the county Development Association, organized labor, youth, ethnic groups and senior citizens.

County Planning Director informed the Board of Supervisors this week that it is planned that the committee will "develop its propose major improvements along the Bay."

The review is expected to take one year to complete.

'Costume Ball' By the Legal Secretaries

The San Mateo County Legal Secretaries Association will stage its 10th annual Christmas "Costume Ball" party Friday at the Gold Platter in San Carlos.

The evening will start at 7 p.m. with dinner scheduled for 8 o'clock. Mary Wrenn, president, will conduct a brief business meeting before dinner.

Mary King is general chairman of the evening. Arturo Galvis of Argentina, and his wife, Adela, a native of Colombia, will perform the Tango, and Sandy Ramirez, a native of Costa Rica, will do a Spanish dance especially choreographed for her.

Costumes are not mandatory for the evening. Charlene Holtman is taking reservations.

Course in Ovulation Method Set

The Mary's Help Natural Family Planning Center will present its second series of classes in the Billings Ovulation Method of family planning on Thursday.

Couples interested in learning the method are invited to attend the 7:30 p.m. course which will take place in the hospital Conference Dining Room.

Drs. John and Evelyn Billings of Australia, a husband-wife team, devised the method and more information about may be obtained from Mary's Help Hospital which is located at 1900 Sullivan Ave., Daly City.

Skateboard Contest Set

A "skateboard contest" will be held at Vista Mar playground on Dec. 4 and 5, from 3:30-5 p.m.

The events will include the figure eight, slalom, 50-yard dash and the overall freestyle.

Boys and girls 8-13 years are eligible to enter.

Sign-up soon with the recreation leader at Vista Mar School.

GIRL SCOUTING

"MR. PATCH," a locally recognized artist, announces a patch design contest for all Northern San Mateo County and San Francisco County Girl Scouts.

The "Be a Designing Woman" patch contest is open to all Brownie, Junior, Cadette, and Senior Scouts. It is an opportunity to create the commemorative patch for SCOUT AMERICA '76, the American Revolution Bicentennial celebration of Girl Scouting April 3 and 4, 1976, on the Serramonte Shopping Center Mall, Daly City.

All entries must be submitted with the artist's name, address, phone number, city and troop number and mailed no later than Dec. 15 to Mr. Patch, Scout America '76, 1711 Sweetwood Drive, Colma, Ca. 94015.

Designs must fit a 3" diameter pattern, be of any shape or form, in no more than three colors plus background and with no more than 50 per cent embroidery coverage.

CHRISTMAS service project for Daly City Junior Girl Scout Troop 2855 will be the fabrication of bean bags and hand puppets decorated with ribbon and a candy cane to be presented to the children at Youth Guidance Center.

Julie Baccell, Kristy Beckman, Cindy Bonomi, Sharron Carroll, Virginia Chiappari, Rene Cox, Tina Freitas, Jackie Ghio, Donna Giammona, Nicole Giannoulis, Leasha Gotelli, Dawn Hertogs, Julie Lopez and Lisa Marren are troop members.

Maria Rodriguez, Lisa Roache, Linda Running, Yvonne Sanchez, Tina Smith, Fatima Solorzano, Kim Terrell and Janet Walters are led by Mrs. Sue Freitas. Girls meet at Daniel Webster School in Daly City.

JUDY SAN PIETRO, leader of Junior Girl Scout troop 185, announces sponsorship by Mathews TV, Mission Street in Daly City and Lewkowitz Chevron on Eastmore Avenue. The troop meets at Our Lady of Mercy.

TROOP PERFORMING arts workshop is scheduled for December 6, from 10:30 a.m. - 2 p.m. at the Frederick Burk School, 700 Font Blvd., San Francisco, sponsored by San Francisco State's drama department and the San Francisco Bay

Chanukah Dinner Scheduled

On December 5 (the last night of Chanukah) a special Chanukah Shabbat dinner will be held at Beth Israel Judea at 6:15 p.m. Following the dinner, B.I. sixth grade religious school students will participate in a creative Shabbat service coordinated by Cantor Henry Greenberg.

Once again, we ask all members of the community to bring their Chanukah menorahs to services so that candles may be lit for the eighth day of Chanukah together as part of the larger Jewish Family.

For information regarding the dinner, call the temple office at 586-8833.

Jeff High Play Set

Jefferson High School Drama Departments fall production will be "The Bad Seed," by Maxwell Anderson.

The play will be performed at Jefferson High School, 6996 Mission St., in Daly City, on Dec. 11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Admission prices are, students, $1, adults $1.50, children (ages 5-10), 50 cents.

Religious Counseling

San Francisco Church of the Holy Trinity, 65 Florence St., Daly City, will provide personalized interdenominational religious offerings or counseling to any person of San Francisco or the Northern Peninsula who is confined at home and not receiving spiritual guidance.

The Rev. Richard Cassipi will provide the service. Call the church at 994-1390 for an appointment.

Girl Scout Council. Preregistration is through the Brisbane Scout office.

MARGARET CONNOLLY, Daly City Girl Scout Association chairwoman, announces there are 24 troops in Daly City serving 111 Brownies, 212 Juniors, 67 Cadettes, 19 Seniors and seven associate Scouts. These 409 Daly City area Scouts are part of 20,221 Girl Scouts in the San Francisco Bay Area Council.

The January 9 meeting of the council is cancelled and the council will convene on April 7.

Daly City will be represented by Mrs. Connolly, one senior Girl Scout and seven additional delegates who may be adults or senior scouts.

Additions and corrections to the Daly City Area Association Service Team list for 1975 to 1976 include Mrs. Barbara Whipple, 96 Zita Manor, Daly City 94015 as city-wide cookie sale manager.

Lynne Bolton, calendar chairwoman should be listed at 93 Creston.

Publicity Chairwoman Roz Morino should be listed at 1711 Sweetwood Drive, Colma 94015.

Additions to the list include Mrs. Bunne Pardini as swimming commissioner and Carole Ann Scott as association bicep liaison to the SCOUT AMERICA '76 planning committee.

Canned Food Drive

The annual canned food drive, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department as part of Operation Santa Claus, will start this week on all Daly City Playgrounds and continue through Dec. 19.

Last year 5,000 canned goods were collected in a joint effort with Daly City schools, playgrounds and various groups.

The goal has been set at 10,000 this year. The canned goods are packaged along with other donated foods and distributed to needy families in Daly City during the Christmas holidays. The entire project is spearheaded by the Daly City Chamber of Commerce.

All Santa's helpers (playground kids) should contact their playground leader for details of the drive and identification tags.

The playground that collects the largest number of cans will be awarded individual candy prizes and a complete new set of playground games and equipment.

All food collected must be commercially canned or packaged foods.

No home-canned foods, items that have been opened or food requiring refrigeration should be accepted.

For further information on this project to help others, call the Recreation Department at 992-5356.

CSM Poll Finds God Alive, Well

By VERA GRAHAM
A startling 73 per cent of the students at the College of San Mateo have a definite concept of God.
Sixty-five per cent believe they can communicate with God and He with them.
These are some of the interesting results of a recent survey conducted on campus by two 19-year-old missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The two young men are Elder Scott Peterson and Elder Stephen Boyd. Scott is from Salt Lake City, Utah, and Boyd is from Boise, Idaho.
Similar surveys, aimed at determining religious beliefs of students, have been and are being conducted throughout the bay area by the Mormon church missionaries.
The survey covered 10 thought-provoking questions which stimulated the interest of students of various ethnic and social backgrounds.
In their answers some added comments such as "What does this mean?" "Who does know?" and "Heavy" as well as "Hey, far out."

The purpose of the survey, as Elder Peterson puts it, "is to get the students to stop for a moment and examine their ideas about God and hopefully to bring a few who want to strengthen their religious foundation upon which they will rest their lives."
Results of the CSM survey were as follows: In response to the question, "Do you have a definite concept of God?" 73 per cent answered, yes, 18 per cent, no, and nine per cent, undecided.
The second query statement was: "We can communicate with God and He with us." Sixty-five per cent answered yes, 19, no, and 16 per cent were undecided.
Other questions and answers were: Do you believe the Bible is the word of God to man? Yes, 46 per cent, no, 39 per cent, undecided 15 per cent.
Do you believe there are absolute standards of right and wrong? Yes, 50 per cent, no, 39 per cent, undecided 11 per cent.

Do you believe there is a life after death? Yes, 65 per cent, no, 15 per cent, 20 per cent undecided.

Mid-Summer Night's Dream

GODFATHER II

CUT TO Godfather in study, smoking cigar, sipping wine, playing liar's dice. Harrington is sitting on other side of the desk with a 3x5 card in his hand.

GODFATHER: Now, consigliere, read to me the the... what you call?

HARRINGTON: The opening day lineup.

GODFATHER: That's right... Wait. I got a horse on myself... (He then motions to Harrington to go on.)

HARRINGTON: Leading off, Bevaqua, playing second base. Batting second, at shortstop. In the third slot, Petrocelli, at third base. Batting cleanup, Tenace, first base. Fifth, Bando, who you moved to left field to make room for Petrocelli.

GODFATHER: (Impatiently waving hand) That's enough... I just won myself a brandy (Pleased with himself, he pours). Consigliere, I'm a great liar. (He refocuses his attention) You contact Atlanta about Capra and Pittsburgh about Guisti, and...

HARRINGTON: I believe we've cornered the market on the top players, yes, Don. And, as you requested, we also got Boomer away from the Yankees.

GODFATHER: That's right. You gotta have a Jew to keep the score.

HARRINGTON: We could use another hitter, Don.

GODFATHER: So getta Big Eddie from Detroit.

HARRINGTON: I said hitter, Don... not hit man.

FADE OUT, FADE IN to Godfather in study, smoking cigar, sipping wine, polishing the Mother of Pearl American flag on his lapel. Camera zooms in on desk calendar, which shows it is early June. Harrington is sitting at desk with very, very long list.

HARRINGTON: The commissioner says that nobody in the stands is watching the games anymore, and as a matter of fact, Yogi says that the players don't aro, you know, that kid with the bad eyes that you brought out of retirement? On long flies, he keeps running into the marble monument of Lucky Luciano you put in center field. And Amalfitano, he wants me to convey to you that the first base coach's box is for him to stand in, and he hates to do it, but he's going to have to trampel your broccoli.

GODFATHER: (Raising eyes to the ceiling) Is nothing sacred? Next, you tell me my own boys from the organization are unhappy.

HARRINGTON: (Perplexed). To tell you the truth, Don, Rico says he can't make enough with the pizza concession on the south side of the stadium, and if you don't give him a bigger cut, he's going to make war on Vito and take over his salami-burger territory on the west side.

GODFATHER: (Now VERY upset) You tella Rico and Vito, they settle peacefully, or Carlo takes over all the concessions, and they know what that mean. Now, that must be all the bad news.

HARRINGTON: Not quite, Godfather. The league is adding two teams, which means we're going to lose three players.

GODFATHER: Why?

HARRINGTON: Because there's no other way for a new team to stock its roster with big league players.

GODFATHER: You mean they just take them?

HARRINGTON: We'll get $75,000 apiece.

GODFATHER: I wanta more.

HARRINGTON: We have no choice.

GODFATHER: (Half to himself) Carlo gonna be busy.

HARRINGTON: That's not all. Montefusco wants a new no-cut contract for a total salary, benefit, and so forth, package of 4.8 million. He wants to borrow $850,000 for 10 years at no interest, he wants a cut of the pizza concession, an option on our grape acreage in Mendocino, and his own situation comedy.

GODFATHER: (Grudging admiration) I don't know why that boy is wasting his time throwing a ball. He should start his own organization.

HARRINGTON: (sheepishly) Additionally, Phooey says you've GOT to pay the visiting team their share of the gate.

GODFATHER: What the hell is this? I no ask for a share when we go to their city. Don't I treat them right when they in my stadium? Don't I bring out the vino and the parmesan and the pasta and...

HARRINGTON: You can't hold back the visitor's cut, Don. It's traditional. And then, the commissioner says you've been lying about your attendance figures...

GODFATHER: How did Leary get away with it? Thisa discriminatory. Besides, I got my other set of books with the exact figures like Leary, so what else he want?

HARRINGTON: He says you're skimming, Don. And that you've got to get the gamblers out of the left field bleachers, and the boys have to disarm themselves during trade negotiations, and that you can't use aliases on the waiver lists, and...

And that's when my dream started to break up. The last thing I remember was Don Calcagno's voice trailing off... What the hell kinda business is this, a man has to be crazy... I'ma going back to organized crime. The disorganized stuff don't work.

June, Harrington is sitting at desk with very, very long list.

HARRINGTON: Don Calcagno. I have a list of complaints here.

GODFATHER: Tell the fans to be patient. We be outta last place as soon as I can sign Franco Harris.

HARRINGTON: But he's a football player, Don, and besides, these complaints aren't from fans.

GODFATHER: Who, then?

HARRINGTON: We'll start with Phooey Keen.

GODFATHER: Whosa he?

HARRINGTON: He's the commissioner of baseball, Don Calcagno.

GODFATHER: Whatsa that?

HARRINGTON: The boss of bosses.

GODFATHER: Carlo! Carlo!

HARRINGTON: No, no, Don... he's not that kind of boss. Just the numero uno of baseball.

GODFATHER: Whatsa this peasant's complaint?

HARRINGTON: To begin with, he says we have to take the bunny costumes off the bat girls and ball girls and usherettes, and we have to get the regular trainer back in the clubhouse, that it isn't right to have that blonde masseuse from North Beach giving the players rubdowns.

GODFATHER: Why, has anybody bothered these girls? Have they bothered anybody?

Bulldogs Rally for Crown

By DAN BERTELLOTTI

Times Correspondent

Recovering from a 40-29 deficit at halftime against a Bud Presley-coached team is like trying to tell Woody Hayes to pass.

And that's the situation that College of San Mateo basketball coach Bobby Pounds faced Saturday night in the Third Annual San Mateo County Community College Tournament at Canada College.

But for the second night in a row, his Bulldogs rallied from a first half deficit to down Menlo for the crown, 75-71. Skyline buzzed to a big first half advantage and wiped out Canada, 80-64, for third place.

What does a coach tell his team when trailing by 11 at half to Presley's blood-and-guts defensive squad?

"I told them I hate to see them fight like hell on the defensive end only to give it away on the offensive end," said Pounds.

San Mateo was playing superb defense, probably the best in Pounds' tenure at CSM, but again missed free throws and two break-away opportunities.

After Menlo took a 52-43 lead, CSM ran off an 8-2 string to take the lead for good with 9:01 left on a 15-foot jumper by the Bulldogs' 6-7 freshman center, Mike Wilson.

CSM moved out to a 10-point lead thanks to a flagrant technical against a Menlo player for punching, and a bucket by Wilson. CSM then switched to a zone defense.

"They were getting their shots too quick," said Pounds. "We forced them to take longer to get their shots and then they started shooting from outside."

CSM Cagers Upset High-Ranked Skyline

By DAN BERTELLOTTI

Times Correspondent

"If we play the way we did tonight against Skyline, Menlo will run us off the court."

That's the way College of San Mateo basketball coach Bobby Pounds sized up Saturday's San Mateo County Community College tournament championship game between his Bulldogs and Menlo.

CSM rallied from a 13-point first half deficit in the opener Friday night to upset highly-regarded Skyline, 69-64, and Menlo blasted host team Canada 82-53 in the annual kickoff of the local basketball season.

CSM, a scrappy, hustling unit, had to overcome sloppy play to stop Skyline.

"We made every mistake possible," said Pounds. "We kicked the ball, dropped the ball out of bounds, and we must have missed 10 free throws (12 to be exact)."

"But in the end when it counted, we came down and ran out patterns and got our points."

After soph guard Mike Jiggetts, out of El Camino High, made three straight baskets to put CSM up 63-58 with 3:50 left, the roof almost fell in on the Bulldogs.

On field goals by Nick Pappageorge and Terry Richard, Skyline moved within one at 65-64, mainly because CSM had missed two one-and-one free throw opportunities.

But then Skyline missed a one-and-one which could have put the Trojans ahead and the Bulldogs' Maurice Pittman gobbled up the rebound.

Pittman, a freshman out of Westmoor

High, did yeoman duty on both boards and contributed 12 points.

"He was our one big man that played consistently well all night," said Pounds.

Wilson, who had a horrendous first half in which he scored only one point, came on strong in the second, netting 15 and flyswatting several shots.

Jiggetts was high man for CSM with 17 points. Pappageorge, the Trojans' sophomore All-State guard from Mills, paced Skyline with 24. Frank Denucci and Mark Felix each added 12.

"I think I can attribute our sloppy play tonight to first-game jitters," Pounds said. "And I have a feeling that we'll play much better against Menlo."

"And we'll certainly have to. We will have to play very well to just be in the game."

Indeed, Oak coach Bud Presley has another of his tough hard-nosed teams.

The Oaks had five men in double figures led by guard Walt Bremond's 16. Two former Hillsdale High stars, Mike Stockwell and Mike Arbun, combined for 17 more. But Arbun suffered a calf injury and his status for tonight is questionable.

"This is a typical Menlo team," stated Pounds. "They play you belly-to-belly all over the floor, never giving you an easy shot."

Skyline played a zone against CSM for most of the game and gave the Bulldogs problems. Menlo is almost strictly a man-to-man defensive team.

Pounds seemed to have his doubts that Menlo would stay with man-to-man against his team tonight.

"Against a man-to-man, the game could be very interesting," said Pounds, hopefully.

MENLO (82):

Heard 4-3-11; Michelmore 6-0-12; Arbun 4-2-10; Bremond 6-4-16; Trobpe 3-0-6; Neal 5-0-10; Stockwell 3-1-7; Vermillion 2-0-4; Morningstar 0-2-0; Snyder 1-0-2; Totals: 36-10-17-82.

CANADA (53):

Skyline Tops Bronco JVs

Skyline College's basketball team helped inaugurate the opening of Santa Clara University's new Thomas E. Leavay Activities Center Monday night by defeating the Bronco junior varsity 70-58 in a preliminary to the SCU-Stanford varsity contest.

Six-foot-four, 195-pound frosh forward Mark Felix from Lawndale High School in Los Angeles paced the victory with 22 points.

Veteran guards Nick Pappageorge and Frank Denucci contributed 14 and 13 points, respectively.

SKYLINE (70): Adams 2-1-2-5; Donovan 1-0-2; Felix 9-4-22; Pappageorge 7-0-0-14; Denucci 6-1-2-13; White 1-4-4-6; Richard 3-0-0-6; Goerss 1-0-2-2; Totals: 30-10-15-70.

Kurpinsky Scores 18 to Pace Keith's

John Kurpinsky hit nine field goals to lead his Keith's Texaco teammates offensively in a good matching with Odyssey in Pacifica's Adult Basketball League. Bernie Barbaro also played well with 13 points.

For Odyssey, player captain Fred Fegan tallied 22 points and was strong at the defensive boards in the losing effort (51-44).

Both Harold Brown and Marty Gale hit for 13 and 12 points respectively in Sun Valley Dairy win over Manor Barber Warriors, 51-49.

The winning team was aided by an impressive 833 free throw percentage, contrasted to a .385 percentage for Manor Barber.

Manor's Ted Scott had an excellent shooting night with 22 points.

In a close physical contest, Bracco's bested Kerri's, 57-51. Glen Johnson had a total of 18 points to lead all scorers in this match.

For Kerri's, Dick Drake sank seven field goals and was "3 for 3" at the line, for a 17-point total.

watch too much, either, even when he can get them off the rubbing table. And Gloria Steinham has wired that you're a male chauvinist porco.

GODFATHER: (Shaking head sadly) This is a hard business to understand.

HARRINGTON: Also, we've got to get the regular special cops back on duty in the stands. The commissioner says the fans are getting nervous of the boys with the violin cases.

GODFATHER: Has there been any trouble, any riots, any muggings?

HARRINGTON: The point is, Don, he says it's bad for the game's image. He also says there are rumors you tried to buy off an umpire.

GODFATHER: (Incredulously) I always pay off the judges!

HARRINGTON: You can't do that in baseball, Don.

GODFATHER: (Weary) What else?

HARRINGTON: He says you have to play the National Anthem before the games. He says La Donna e' Mobile won't do.

GODFATHER: (Slamming his head on the desk) What kinda man is he? We have to culture? ... Ok, tell him I hire Tony Bennett personal to do the Little Cable Cars son, but the National Anthem is outa! That's a crummy song. Jesus Christ couldn't sing it from the Mount.

HARRINGTON: (Trying to calm the Don down) OK, we'll put that discussion off to some later date. I think the commissioner will bypass that at least temporarily if you cut out the naked girl jumping out of the huge bowl of crab cioppino to hand the umpires the new balls.

GODFATHER: But that's all my niece is trained for... Well, maybe we compromise on that. The cioppino being lousy, anyway. Theresa no more good Italian chefs.

HARRINGTON: There are two things about which the commissioner is adamant, Don, on which there can be no compromise.

GODFATHER: (Deeply perturbed) What now?

HARRINGTON: He says you can't flash the day's numbers on the scoreboard, and if you want to shoot off fireworks when one of our players hits a home run, it's OK, but the three boys on the center field wall shooting off the Tommy guns have got to go.

GODFATHER: Geezus, you try something new in this game, it get shot down. Perdone. That's bad pun, consigliere, I must be going outa my head.

HARRINGTON: Are you ready for the players' complaints, Don?

GODFATHER: The players? My God, I treat them like my own sons.

HARRINGTON: Well, that's one of the complaints, Don. You see, they don't all WANT to marry Sicilian girls. And Blomberg's parents are especially upset.

GODFATHER: Madre Mia!

HARRINGTON: Also, they want you to know that they like the alligator skin spikes, and that the dark blue pin-striped color scheme on the uniforms is OK, but that it's hard to play in double-breasted jerseys. And Conigli-

Pollution Watch Promoted

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-San Mateo County, has urged his constituents to join the California Air Resources Board in its drive to detect major air polluters.

"The ARB has called on all Californians to report non-vehicular pollution. This would include violations like unauthorized agricultural burning, excessive discharges from industrial smokestacks and industrial odors," Papan said.

Massages are taped 24 hours a day by the local air pollution control district at 771-6000 or by the local air pollution control district at 771-6000 or by the Air Resources Board in Sacramento at (916) 322-6022.

"Fighting air pollution should not be limited to a handful of government officials who can't possibly locate all the violations themselves," he said.

"Cooperation from private citizens can make the job of clearing the air a lot easier," he said.

Persons reporting violations should include the exact location, type, date and time of the violation. They should also inform the ARB if a photograph of the violation is available.

Papan emphasized, however, that under no circumstances should people enter private property unlawfully to take individual action against excessive polluters.

Brisbane Quarry Plan Approved by Planners

A new five-year plan for operation of the Brisbane quarry was approved unanimously Tuesday by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

The board action authorizes the county Planning Commission to proceed with granting of a one-year use permit at today's meeting to Quarry Products, Inc., which leases the quarry from Crocker Land Co.

In its action, the board requested the Planning Commission to give "due consideration" of requiring the quarry operator to develop an alternate access road for hauling of material from the quarry.

The town of Brisbane is not happy with the present haul route which passes through the community via Old County Road. In a report to the board, County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe said the most viable alternate route would connect the quarry to South Hill Drive in Crocker Industrial Park.

However, he reported, it is "almost unfair" to ask the quarry operator to spend a high amount for the cost of a new haul route when the use permit for operation of the quarry is granted only on a one-year basis, although there is a five-year plan for the quarry operation.

At his suggestion, the board agreed to instruct the planning staff to prepare an amendment to the quarry ordinance which would allow issuance of a use permit for a period of five years, subject to review to assure a compliance with the ordinance.

The board also certified the environmental impact report on the five-year plan correct, complete and adequate and that, although the project will have a significant impact on the environment, it will have an overall beneficial effect on the county and state in both the long and short run.

Clark Smithson, Brisbane city manager, requested that the board not act on the EIR until the city council had a chance to review the comments replying to the comments the city had on the draft EIR.

The City Council is not opposed to continued operation of the quarry, Smithson said, but feels an alternate haul route should be developed to take the trucks off Brisbane streets.

Woolfe reported that if the board failed to take action on the five-year plan or rejected it the Planning Commission would not be able to take action today on renewal of the use permit, which expires Dec. 31.

Curt Bottoms, general manager for Quarry Products, reported that he has had to lay off nine employees recently because he has not been able to bid on jobs because of the uncertainty about renewal of the use permit.

He described the quarry as the only source of high-quality rock in the county.

Mrs. Ellie Larsen, speaking on behalf of the Sierra Club, noted the number of current proposals concerning the San Bruno Mountain area, noting that separate EIRs are being prepared and citing the club's concern that such reports are not being integrated in the planning process.

Carl Hirsch, speaking for the Coalition of Concerned Citizens, said that, "You have to draw the line somewhere . . . consider the individual projects. Environmental awareness is good, but it results in needless delays."

Window Smashed, Man Held

Sheriff's deputies, security officers and firemen subdued a man on a PSA jet plane at San Francisco International Airport Friday after he allegedly had pushed his fist through an inner plastic window of the aircraft while it was in flight.

The pilot of flight 723 from Los Angeles radioed for assistance and officers were waiting when the plane arrived at gate 34.

Deputies reported the man was abusive and combative and knocked down several firemen and paramedics when they attempted to treat his hand, which had been cut by the plastic.

He was subdued and taken to Chope Community Hospital, where the hand was treated, although he still was belligerent, deputies said.

Booked at county jail on suspicion of being drunk in public, disturbing the peace, vandalism and resisting arrest was Richard Harold Hyatt, 25, of Los Angeles, who authorities said told them he was en route here to work as a security guard.

The outer window of the aircraft was undamaged, deputies reported.

Bus Purchase Plan Unveiled

Purchase of 47 additional buses to augment the 69 already providing local transit service in the county is proposed by John Mauro, general manager of the San Mateo County Transit District in a proposed $2,439,835 capital improvement program submitted to the district's board of directors Nov. 25.

The board approved a recommendation of Mauro that 19 renovated buses be lease-purchased from AC Transit and from Eastshore Lines at a total cost of $120,000.

Mauro said that the renovated equipment will be immediately available, as compared to a wait of 12 to 18 months for new equipment.

The general manager said that there is a need in three cities for additional equipment to start service where none exists, to expand peak hour capacity and to expand routes.

Mauro said that six of the renovated buses will go to Daly City to replace obsolete equipment which has been banned by the California Highway Patrol and has reduced service from 19 vehicles to 11 or 12 daily.

One bus will go to Belmont to initiate a College of San Mateo-Marine World-Redwood Shores route.

Five buses will go to San Bruno to initiate service by July 1, 1976.

Seven of the buses will be held in reserve pending review of other applications for additional vehicles.

Mauro reported that the buses will have new seats installed and will be repainted inside and out.

Most of the balance of the capital improvement program budget is allocated for purchase of 28 new buses, with funding also included for equipment and for installation of benches, shelters and signs at bus stops.

National Award to SM Family Service

The highest national award in the field of family service was won this week by the Family Service Agency of San Mateo County for its advocacy program for low income, Spanish-surnamed people.

The Margaret Elden Rich Memorial Award is given biennially by the Family Service Agency of America for distinguished leadership in undertaking or promoting a significant community or legislative action aiding family life.

San Mateo shared the award this year with the United Charities of Chicago and J. Donald Cameron, executive director of the Family Service Agency of San Mateo County.

The local agency operates offices in Burlingame, Pacifica and Redwood City.

San Mateo began its program in 1971 in response to the Agency's awareness that more than 11 per cent of the county's population is Spanish-surnamed, said Cameron.

The goals of the program are three-fold:

- To bring about the improved use of existing community resources by low income Spanish-surnamed people in San Mateo County.
- To identify and bring about needed changes in the procedures and structures of other agencies so that they can more effectively meet the needs of this County's 51,000 Spanish speaking people.
- To create new programs to help this large population.

As a result of this program there are, among many other accomplishments, a new job training program for the Spanish speaking people of the County, a bilingual education program in the appropriate school districts, bilingual IRS staff persons available to help with

Bay Area Concerts

The American Ballet Theatre, Andre Segovia, and Van Cliburn are three of the many outstanding concert attractions scheduled by Fine Arts Development for the Bay Area winter season.

The new year starts this month for Fine Arts Development, as it opens its 1975-76 season with six performances of "The Nutcracker" with the Theatre Ballet of San Francisco and the San Jose Symphony under the direction of George Cleve at the Flint Center, De Anza College in Cupertino, Dec. 19-22.

Tickets are on sale now for all events, with the exception of American Ballet Theatre.

Brisbane Residents Aid Police

Alert residents in Brisbane helped police apprehend a suspected prowler early Friday.

At 6:50 a.m., Brisbane police received a call from a woman who said she saw a prowler at 207 Lake St.

Police arrived and checked the area but found nothing.

The woman provided a description noting the man wore light blue clothes and shoes.

However, Officer Tim Guiney was patrolling in a car about 75 yards away when a man on a balcony of a home overlooking 796 Sierra Point Road yelled at Guiney that he had seen a man running through the backyard of that house.

The suspect ran around the corner of the house and was arrested by Guiney on charges of prowling.

The suspect, Patrick Breckenridge, 24, of Brisbane, also was charged with resisting arrest after struggling to free himself from Guiney, police said.

Breckenridge told police he was a salesman.

Police said the same two houses were the scenes of prowlers two different days last week also.

Those two incidents are still under investigation, police said.

SSF Man Arrested

A chase through a residential area of Brisbane ended in the arrest of a hit and run suspect just after midnight Saturday.

Police charged Michael Hershey, 23, of South San Francisco with hit and run and drunken driving.

Officer Tim Guiney was driving on San Bruno Avenue when he saw two cars collide at Monterey and San Bruno Avenues.

Guiney said that the suspect took off in his car at a high rate of speed.

The driver whose car had been hit, Larry Green of Brisbane, also started to pursue the suspect until he saw police take up the chase, Guiney reported.

Guiney chased the car along San Bruno Avenue at 60 and 65 miles an hour until the suspect was stopped by a second officer, Rick Howie, who blocked the road with his patrol car a mile away at Bayshore Boulevard.

El Camino High School will present the musical comedy "Sugar" based on the screen play of "Some Like It Hot" in the school's little theater Dec. 6, 7 and 8 at 8 p.m.

Viet Hero Pleads Guilty in Slaying

A San Bruno man awarded for heroism while serving as a Marine in Vietnam pleaded guilty in San Mateo County Superior Court Monday to a charge of second degree murder.

Henry M. Schunck, 26, who won the Navy Cross, an award second only to the Congressional Medal of Honor, after being wounded twice, admitted shooting and killing Steven Reed, 24, of South San Francisco. Reed's buried body was found last Aug. 13 on San Bruno Mountain.

Sheriff's Det. Leonard Gordon, who discovered the decomposed body, said Reed, missing since September, 1974, had been shot in the forehead in a drug-related slaying.

Schunck, a house painter, entered his guilty plea before Judge William Lanam. The court scheduled sentencing for Jan. 14 at 9 a.m. Schunck also admitted the use of a gun in the commission of a crime.

Gordon said the slaying of Reed stemmed from the theft of a TV set from a home the men were painting. Reed assertedly shot the set to purchase drugs and didn't share the proceeds with Schunck. The latter then shot and killed Reed, burying his body near the Guadalupe Canyon Parkway, the detective said.

Schunck's attorney, William Schumacher, related that the defendant, partially disabled as a result of his war wounds, was a corporal when his detachment was attacked by North Vietnamese forces May 10, 1968.

Schunck left the protection of the command bunker and moved under intense enemy fire to a mortar emplacement, being wounded by grenade fragments enroute. While attempting to deliver mortar fire single handedly, Schunck was attacked by a North Vietnamese soldier with a flamethrower. Schunck shot and killed the soldier.

After helping rescue a wounded companion, Schunck went to another mortar position and continued to fire on the enemy until his ammunition ran out. He was wounded a second time by grenade fragments in the process.

Despite his wounds, Schunck continued to distribute ammunition and to move casualties to safety until his near exhaustion forced him to accept evacuation, the Navy Cross citation states.

Schumacher said that Schunck became involved with drugs while serving in Vietnam.

Bilingual Voter Guide Costs Soar

It will cost the county of San Mateo $215,000 to mail out voter pamphlets for the primary and general elections next year because of new regulations requiring bilingual printing of the pamphlets. County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church reports.

Church said this week that he plans, as president of the County Clerks Association of California, to propose that the interim regulations governing the federal Voting Rights Act be amended to permit counties to mail bilingual election material to only those registered voters requesting it in writing.

"Such a procedure would save the taxpayers an astronomical amount," Church said. "The great majority of our citizens have no need for this material in two languages."

Church reported that the bilingual (English and Spanish) pamphlet for the June primary election will consist of approximately 176 pages, three times the size of the June, 1974, primary pamphlet.

Although the state must stand the cost of printing the state pamphlet, the county must assume the postage costs, estimated at $84,000.

Crowd Shouts At Ryan

Hooted and shouted at a grim Congressman Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo County, was urged Nov. 25 to withdraw his bill calling for a two-year study to determine the feasibility of adding nearly one-half of the county to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Ryan appeared before a meeting in Redwood City of the county Board of Supervisors attended by some 200 persons, most of them irate Coastside residents.

The congressman said he was appearing to "clarify misinformation" concerning reports of the possibility of nearly 142,000 acres of the county's Coastside west of Skyline Boulevard being included in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area (GGNRA).

Since the energy crisis developed, Ryan related, the general attitude in Congress has been that now is the time to change the emphasis on acquisition of land for national parks requiring long trips to reach, to emphasis on acquiring land for recreational use within urban area.

Consequently, he said, he decided this year to submit a bill requiring a study of the situation by the federal government, with the result to become the official policy of the government for acquisition of land, if any, in San Mateo County.

The congressman insisted, however, that "no property owners should be included in the National Recreation Area if they don't want to be."

"I don't intend to fight anyone for their land," he said.

He said Congressman Philip Burton, D-San Francisco, now has "no intention" of introducing a bill calling for inclusion of the San Mateo County Coastside in the GGNRA.

Ryan's assurances failed to alleviate the concerns of the coastside residents jammed into the meeting.

Alcohol Program Eyed by Board

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors voted 3 to 2 Nov. 25 to attempt to have the county included as one of four in the state which will participate in a new alcohol and driving treatment program.

Authorized in a bill sponsored by state Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, the program requires that all persons convicted of a first drunken driving offense successfully participate in a driver improvement-alcohol awareness program or have driving privileges suspended for six months.

The new law (SB 330), which goes into effect Jan. 1, also requires persons convicted of second or subsequent offenses to successfully participate in a one-year or longer program for alcoholics or problem drinkers in order to retain their drivers' licenses.

Fred Lyon, of El Granada, urged the board to seek participation in the program on behalf of the Central Labor Council "because retaining a driver's license can determine continued employment."

Lyon said the labor council and the United Fund are willing to provide seed funds to initiate the program. It is anticipated, Lyon related, that those persons allowed to retain their driver's licenses under the program will pay enough in costs to finance indigents who also are in the program.

County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett said that if the county is selected for the pilot program it will be for a period of two years.

He warned that additional costs could be expected, but did not cite the financial help which Lyon said would be forthcoming from the labor council and the United Fund. The additional workload entailed by the program would require a new fulltime staff position at an estimated cost of $15,000 a year, Pickett said.

The health and welfare director estimated the program would involve up to 200 drivers a year and would cost from $20,000 to $40,000 in county subsidy to finance treatment unless full-pay patients were charged enough to subsidize the partial-pay or no-pay patients.

Another problem, Dr. Pickett said, is whether SB 330 is constitutional.

"Can the state legislature allow SB 330 legal procedures to exist in four counties and not in others?" he asked.

"It seems likely," Dr. Pickett reported, "that a constitutional challenge to SB 330 will be mounted shortly after Jan. 1."

If this challenge succeeds, it is unclear whether any programs in the four pilot counties will be able to continue. Even if San Mateo is chosen as one of the four pilot counties, the time, energy and money put into creating SB 330 may be for naught.

"Here we are again, between the devil and the deep blue sea," commented Supervisor Edward J. Baccicco Jr., who, along with Board Chairman James V. Fitzgerald, voted against seeking participation in the program.

"Methodology in treating alcoholism is an inexact science," Baccicco asserted. "Here we are being asked to approve yet another program. Well-meaning people are getting together to create the program, but once they give birth they don't pay for the upbringing."

"I'm getting tired of the legislature creating a program, then telling us we have to pay for it," he added. "I'm not in favor unless the legislature agrees to pay for it."

Supervisor Jean Fassler said she would like to seek the county pursue the labor council and United Fund commitment.

"If the labor council has this interest, it must be significant to the employer," she stated.

Supervisor William H. Royer said he favored the program because "we need better ways to take care of people with this problem."

The private sector should be encouraged to create their own alcoholism treatment programs, he said. The county should pursue the proposed program on the basis it will be self-sustaining, and without committing county funds, Royer contended.

Dr. Pickett, noting that his department is noncommittal on recommending the program, said there is a question of whether the county wants to jump into the pilot program or wait a couple of years to enter. Guidelines have not been established by the state, he reported.

"If you're not recommending, I take it you're recommending against it," observed Fitzgerald.

Dr. Pickett denied the charge, noting, "The board has been saying it doesn't want strong advocacy of new programs."

Supervisor John M. Ward moved that the board file for participation in the program, with the stipulation the county is not committing itself to financing until there is more information.

County Manager M. D. Tashers warned there is the "strong possibility" that the county Probation Department, which is likely to be called on to administer the program, "will be telling you it needs additional staff to carry it out."

Lyon said there is no reason the county can't opt out if the program is not what it is said to be.

Planned 'Super Agency' Draws Support, Fire

A resolution now being drafted by the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office could be the first step in reorganization of key county departments.

That was the consensus following statements by the public and some county government officials at a County Supervisors' hearing held Nov. 25 in San Bruno.

The purpose of the hearing was to gather information from the public on a proposal by the County Manager, M.D. "Marty" Tashers to reorganize the county's now separate planning, redevelopment and housing agencies as a single agency.

Tashers will be directly in charge of the so-called "super-agency" if it comes into being.

Following the hearing, in which only five persons from the audience spoke the supervisors instructed Asst. Dist. Atty. James Aiello to draft a resolution aimed at establishment of a nine member citizens' advisory committee for the new proposed agency.

Mrs. Patricia Terry, chairwoman for the Citizens Advisory Committee on Housing and Community Development, asked the board to expedite action on the merger "and the appointment of a Housing and Community Development Citizen Advisory Committee."

Mrs. Terry said her group supports the proposal. She suggested the board consider incorporation to allow representation from local redevelopment project committees in other areas of the county besides East Palo Alto.

The proposed change would provide that the chairman of each such local redevelopment committee required by law shall become an ex-officio representative to the Housing and Community Development Citizen Advisory Committee.

In order to keep the size of the committee within legal bounds (nine persons) the local committees would be advisory committees, "solely for redevelopment purposes," Mrs. Terry suggested.

Daly City City Manager David Rowe, on behalf of his council, expressed opposition to the proposed agency.

He said cooperation between the now-autonomous Housing Authority, under Glenn Weiman and Daly City was excellent, especially regarding redevelopment of the Midway Village project in Daly City, and he could see no justification for the new agency.

Rowe said he feels the merger might jeopardize the relationship between Weiman and Daly City.

Midway Village, a WW II housing project, is being rebuilt by the Housing Authority. Once completed, Daly City is expected to take over maintenance of streets and safety services.

The Housing Authority now pays Daly City a moderate sum each year to help offset policing and maintenance costs of the village.

Daly City received some $3,000 last year. Howard Oliphant, a member of the Citizens Committee on Government Operations in San Mateo County, charged Rowe with being "cozy" with Weiman and asked if the Housing Authority was in fact giving preferential treatment to the North County City.

Tashers said he had never heard of any preferential treatment by Weiman toward any area of the county.

What Daly City fears, according to Rowe, is that housing matters in Daly City will be lost to other priorities if the county takes over the agency.

And the Housing Authority office would be relocated in Redwood City, along with other government offices, instead of San Mateo "which is more accessible."

Problems of transition between the Housing Authority and Daly City concerning Midway Village can be worked out, Supervisor Jean Fassler assured Rowe.

Meeting of Handicapped Set in R.C.

The California Association of the Physically Handicapped will hold its next monthly meeting Dec. 9 in Redwood City.

The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Gold Star Room of the Veterans Memorial Building.

George Nickleson of the San Mateo County Transit District will be the guest speaker, to be followed by open discussion of local transit problems affecting the handicapped.

SSF Youth Found Dead

An 18-year-old youth apparently took his own life on San Bruno Mountain about three hours after he was involved in an automobile accident on the mountain on Nov. 25, coroner's investigators reported last week.

He was identified as David M. Romine, 18, of 113 Gunman Way, South San Francisco, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Romine of South San Francisco.
